GOP Gains May Hamper Truman Foreign Policy

By E. J. ANDERSON

NEW YORK (CP)—The Democratic Party survived stunning defeats in a half-dozen key states to retain control of Congress in Tuesday's United States General Election.

The Republican surge may hamper President Truman's "fair deal" program and affect American foreign policy. The Democrats squeezed through with control of the Senate and House of Representatives.

The Senate will line up in January with 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans. At 9 a.m. (E.S.T.) the Democrats clinched control of the 435-seat House of Representatives by winning their 218th seat.

The Democrats technically had won the election. But the margin of victory was so narrow, and the Republican gains were so sweeping, that the election result clearly was a Democratic defeat.

At 9 a.m. this was the standing of the new 82nd Congress: Senate: Democrats retained control of the 96-seat chamber 49 to 47.

House of Representatives (435 seats): Democrats elected 218, Republicans elected 168, undecided 49.

The Republicans recorded a net gain of five seats in the Senate they needed seven to win control. The Republicans picked up seats in Idaho, Illinois, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Utah and California, where administration stalwarts went down to defeat.

They lost in Missouri where Forrest Donnell was beaten. Returns early today gave Representative Richard M. Nixon, Republican, a senatorial victory over Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democrat who was praised by President Truman for her support of his foreign policies.

Nixon had attacked her as supporting left-wingers. In Washington, Democrat Senator Warren G. Magnuson defeated Republican Walter Williams by a wide margin in the last Senate seat to report.

The Senate division was the closest since 1930. Of the few House seats remaining to be decided, the Democrats seemed to be pointed to a majority over the Republicans of about 20 seats.

In an anti-Truman administration drive Republican opponents bowled over Senators Scott W. Lucan of Illinois, the democratic leader, and Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania, his assistant.

The one Republican senator defeated, Donnell, lost to Thomas C. Hennings Jr., in Truman's home state. The President had given belated support to Hennings after opposing him in pre-election primary voting.

The Republican victories—which included the re-election of "Mr. Republican," Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio—were variously attributed to the adverse turn of the Korean war, criticism of the President's foreign-policy decisions, opposition to his domestic "Fair Deal" program and reactions to Communist-in-government charges.

Along with Lucas and Myers, veteran Democratic senators Millard E. Tydings of Maryland and Elbert D. Thomas of Utah went down to defeat before Republican opponents.

All four Democrats have been strong supporters of the President's foreign policies. Thomas, as chairman of the Senate labor committee, led a futile administration drive to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Act—one of Truman's pet legislative aims.

The other seat which had been filled by a Democrat was won by Republican Herman Welker in Idaho.

Other New York results followed forecasts with Democrat-Liberal Senator Herbert H. Lehman winning re-election and Vincent Impellitteri, an Independent, beating his Democratic and Republican opponents for mayor of New York City.

The defeat of Lucas in Illinois was regarded as a particular blow to the administration's handling of international affairs.

Lucas had charged his victorious Republican opponent, former Representative Everett Dirksen, with holding "isolationist" views. Senator Homer E. Capehart, Indiana Republican who had criticized severely the administration's handling of international issues and the President's "Fair Deal" program, won in Indiana.

The re-election of Taft in Ohio and of Millikin in Colorado, as well as the defeat of Democratic Governor Bowles in Connecticut, gave signs that voters in widely separated areas were cold to Truman's "fair deal" program.

Taft attacked the program just as vigorously as Bowles defended it.

TAFT IN LIMELIGHT

Taft's re-election puts him into the Republican presidential calculations for 1952. His margin of victory over his Democratic opponent, state auditor Joseph Ferguson, was decisive enough to tab the Ohio Republican as a vote getter.

Dewey's substantial victory in his third-term race in New York kept him in position to control that state's big delegation, the 1952 Republican nominating convention. Dewey said repeatedly during the campaign that he doesn't regard himself as a possibility for the nomination. He has proposed Gen. Dwight Eisenhower as the nominee.

In New York's 18th congressional district, Representative Vito Marcantonio, American Labor Party, went down to defeat at the hands of a Democratic-Liberal-Republican coalition candidate, James G. Donovan, a registered Democrat.

U.S. Air Armada Blasts Sinuiju New Red Capital

By RALPH TEATSBORTH

TOKYO (UP)—A huge American aerial armada destroyed 90 per cent of the North Korean refugee capital of Sinuiju on Red China's doorstep today with a record 632-ton fire raid. Seventy-nine B-29s and some 225 fighters smashed at Sinuiju, which is just across the Yalu River frontier from Manchuria, with 85,000 incendiary bombs, 24 high-explosive bombs, napalm (flaming gasoline), rockets and machine-gun bullets.

'Copter Spots Plane Wreck In Montana

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—Butte police chief Bart J. Riley said at 9 a.m. C.S.T. today that a "helicopter is circling the wreckage" of a Northwest Airlines plane missing with 22 persons aboard in the mountains east of here.

Riley said the plane was over Nine-Mile Canyon, which cuts up the main range of the continental divide near Homestead. He said there "was no sign of life."

The big airliner with 18 passengers and a crew of four disappeared Tuesday in a blizzard shortly after it had left Helena, Mont., headed for Butte. It was bound from Chicago to Seattle.

Several residents in the dense, mountainous country reported hearing a "terrific explosion."

Dollar At New York

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was up 3/4 of a cent at a discount of 3 1/2 per cent in terms of U.S. funds in foreign exchange dealings here this forenoon. The pound sterling was unchanged at $2.80 1/2.

ELECTION VICTOR in California gubernatorial fight was Republican Earl Warren, who defeated James Roosevelt, son of the late president.

Revolt Suppressed After 400 Arrested

Puerto Rican Nationalists and suspected Communist sympathizers are lined up and kept under constant guard at an interrogation centre in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Scene such as this marked the collapse of the fanatic revolt which was marked by heavy fighting between Nationalists and the National Guard. The rebellion fizzled out with the capture and surrender of more than 400 persons after nearly 30 had died in the fighting. The uprising has spurred mass registration by the women of the island for the June 4 elections, when Puerto Ricans will choose their own constitution. (NEA Photo)

U.N. Council May Demand China Reds Quit N. Korea

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—The United States may ask the United Nations Security Council today to demand withdrawal of Chinese Communist forces from Korea.

The council meets in emergency session to take up Gen. MacArthur's charges that the Chinese Reds are fighting alongside the North Koreans.

The U.S., it is learned, has prepared a resolution including the order for the Red withdrawal, but its instruction may be delayed by two factors:

1. A need for further consultations with other delegations in order to present a unified front against expected Russian obstruction.

2. The probability that the council will be tied up in a procedural wrangle over inviting raked the area with napalm, rockets and bullets.

KIMPO AIRFIELD, Korea (UP)—Four U.S. jet fighters shot down one Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighter and damaged another in a 600-mile-an-hour fight in the sub-stratosphere today.

The damaged jet and six to 10 others in the enemy formation escaped across the border into Manchuria after the furious five-minute battle 20,000 feet over the northwest border city of Sinuiju, provisional capital of North Korea.

None of the American F-80 Shooting Star planes was hit. It was the first confirmed "kill" of a Soviet-manufactured jet aircraft.

Red China to send a representative for discussion of MacArthur's charges.

At every previous council session dealing with Korea or China, Russia's Jakob A. Malik has demanded that a representative of the Communist Peiping government be invited. He is expected to repeat that demand today. The council already has asked the Reds to appear Nov. 15 to present charges that American "sealing off" of Formosa constitutes aggression.

An informed source said the United States is not averse to hearing what the Reds have to say, but wants the council to "summon" them to explain their conduct—not "invite" them to participate in discussions.

If the question of Red Chinese representation is settled, and if last-minute consultations show other delegations in favor, the U.S. plans to introduce a resolution which would:

1. Call on all governments to refrain from assisting the North Koreans. This repeats an earlier demand which Russia vetoed in September.

2. Specifically demand withdrawal of alien forces now fighting alongside the North Koreans. It will leave no doubt that the Chinese Reds are meant.

3. Request the U.N. Korean commission to consider urgently all questions relating to the Korean-Manchurian border.

The third section of the resolution is in line with one adopted by the Korean interim committee last night.

Supervised strike vote among workers at Victoria Machinery Depot and Yarrags Limited will be held Thursday.

"It will take all day today and Wednesday to compile the voters' lists," a spokesman for the B.C. Labor Relations Board said.

Between 300 and 400 are expected to be put on the voters' lists. The men are members of eight unions and will vote in individual union blocks at the two shipyards concerned.

(In Vancouver the union, company and government representatives broke off negotiations Monday after the 10 striking unions had rejected the latest offer of the operators—an 11-cent increase. It was the sixth meeting in an effort to settle the strike called for Oct. 18).

City Council should've asked them visitin' dentists for expert advice on Point Ellice bridgework.

Looks like they might soon be singin' "Now is the Hour" to our dear ol' Aorangi. I'd rather make it "Keep Coming Back Like a Song."

Can't figger just why them hospitals are still crowded. I herd that blackstrap molasses was sure-fire cure for anythin'.

Election Of Duff Turns Eyes To 1952

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—James H. Duff won election to the U.S. Senate today, gaining added stature as a Republican Presidential possibility in 1952.

Duff, who has been Pennsylvania's governor for the last four years, trounced the Senate's No. 2 Democrat, Francis J. Myers, by 125,000 votes in balloting that swept Duff's hand-picked mate for governor, John S. Fine, into office.

Fine, 57, succeeded Duff as governor by defeating Richardson Dilworth, Philadelphia city treasurer, by 83,000 votes.

Dewey Rides G.O.P. Sweep; Impellitteri Is N.Y. Mayor

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, winning a third term by a substantial majority, led a parade of Republicans capturing governors' offices. Republican entries picked up posts formerly filled by Democrats in Connecticut, Maryland, Nevada and Colorado.

One of the Democratic victims was Governor Chester Bowles of Connecticut, a "Fair Deal" supporter, who lost to Republican Representative John Davis Lodge.

Some Democrats survived the Republican onslaught, notably senators Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and Brien McMahon and William Benton of Connecticut.

The fifth Senate Democratic seat to go to the Republicans was that previously held in Idaho by Senator Glen Taylor.

Governor Dewey of New York rode the tide into a third term.

RE-ELECTED as New York governor is Thomas E. Dewey, who helped complete rout of New York Democrats by defeating Rep. Walter A. Lynch by 500,000-vote margin.

ROOSEVELT BEATEN

Californians Give Warren Third Term

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A smashing vote in Tuesday's election over Democrat James Roosevelt assured Republican Earl Warren a third term as California's governor—and a crack, maybe, at bigger things in '52.

Returns from the day's balloting pointed strongly to election of fast-rising young Representative Richard M. Nixon (Rep.) to the U.S. Senate. He interpreted the vote as a mandate to continue his fight against President Truman's foreign policy.

His opponent, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (Dem.), refused to concede. The former actress, a 100 per cent New Dealer, was warmly endorsed by President Truman for her support of his program.

Warren's return to another four years in office was never in doubt. Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, failed to challenge the popular chief executive in even democratic Los Angeles County.

Roosevelt conceded at midnight. He sent his "sincere congratulations" to the executive mansion in Sacramento where the usual election-night cheer was missing.

Doctors discovered only yesterday that Nina Warren, 17, one of six Warren children, had infantile paralysis. The governor wept as he reached her bedside. Her condition is serious.

Warren gave no hint as to any future ambitions. His party's 1948 nominee for vice-president, he already has been mentioned as a 1952 prospect.

Great U.S. Air Armada Blasts Refugee Capital Of Red Koreans

By RALPH TEATSORTH

TOKYO (UPI)—A huge U.S. aerial armada destroyed 90 per cent of the North Korean refugee capital of Sinuiju on Red China's doorstep today with a record 632-ton fire raid.

Seventy-nine B-29s and some 225 fighters smashed at Sinuiju, which is just across the Yalu River frontier from Manchuria, with 85,000 incendiary bombs, 34 high-explosive bombs, napalm (flaming gasoline), rockets and machine-gun bullets.

Ten of the Superfortresses dropped 12 1,000-pound demolition bombs on the first spans of each of the city's two double-tracked railway bridges across the Yalu to the Manchurian city of Antung. The other B-29s all carried fire bombs.

FIRST OF TYPE

Gen. Douglas MacArthur ordered the first co-ordinated bomber-fighter attack of the war in an attempt to knock out the principal North Korean receiving point for supplies and troops pouring into North Korea from Communist China.

A radar observer in one of the final waves of B-29s said it "looked like the atomic bomb had hit there." Smoke mushroomed 21,000 feet over the stricken city, refuge of North Korean Premier Kim Il-sung and his government.

The raid came as United Nations ground forces, buttressed by the arrival of the U.S. 3rd Division, advanced all along both the northwest and northeast fronts in preparation for new offensives.

The U.S. 2nd Division in the west sent patrols more than half way across the mountainous neck of Northern Korea into Sangsim, where they were scheduled to link up with units from the northeast coast. The patrols reported they were in radio contact with eastern forces.

The big raid on Sinuiju was preceded by another series of clashes between Russian-built MIG-15 fighters and American aircraft.

JET BAGGED

In one sub-sonic fight, an American F-80 Shooting Star jet fighter shot down an MIG-15 jet in the first all-jet air combat in aviation history.

Another American F-80 damaged an MIG-15 and propeller-driven Mustangs claimed to have damaged three more in subsequent clashes. None of the American planes was hit.

The B-29s hit Sinuiju in waves from 12:09 p.m. (7:09 p.m. Tuesday, P.S.T.) until shortly after 1 p.m. Both before and after the bombing raid, American Shooting Star and Mustang fighters raked the area with napalm, rockets and bullets.

SOVIET JET DOWNED

KIMPO AIRFIELD, Korea (UPI)—Four U.S. jet fighters shot down one Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighter and damaged another in a 600-mile-an-hour fight in the sub-stratosphere today.

The damaged jet and six to 10 others in the enemy formation escaped across the border into Manchuria after the furious five-minute battle 20,000 feet over the northwest border city of Sinuiju, provisional capital of North Korea.

3-PRONGED COMMUNIST DRIVE NEARING UNRESISTING LHASA

KALIMPONG, Northern India (Reuter)—The Chinese-led "people's army," rolling across Tibet in a three-pronged drive on Lhasa, today was expected to reach the Tibetan capital almost hourly.

Reports reaching here today from Lhasa said the pro-Chinese lamas who took over the government of Tibet this week have ordered the people of Lhasa not to resist the onrushing Communist troops.

The nearest column was last reported 45 miles away when it passed Phondo Dzong Tuesday. The Chinese-led armies are believed to be made up now largely of Tibetans picked up along the way.

WANT BETTER COVERAGE

Delegation Asks Nine City Polling Stations

Despite advice of M. Frank Hunter, city returning officer, and Sydney Child, federal returning officer, representatives of four organizations, today asked the city to inaugurate nine additional polling stations rather than just the four approved at City Council meeting Tuesday.

They met with Mayor Percy George and the legislative committee, under chairmanship of Ald. Harold Diggon.

"Having considered the whole situation I feel the central polling station is the type for Victoria," said City Clerk Hunter. If, however, the multiple polling stations were to be put in, he felt fair coverage would demand 10 and even that might not be sufficient.

"Aren't we fighting a bogey?" asked H. K. Bate of the Junior

Chamber of Commerce during discussion of possible repeat votes.

A. P. Rayment, secretary of the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council, felt few people would try to cast ballots at more than one station. O. B. Taylor of the Non-Partisan League, which called for the multiple polling idea two years ago, expressed a similar opinion.

When Mr. Taylor and Mr. Bate questioned the need for quick results, Mr. Hunter stated pressure had been growing over the years from press, public and candidates for quick results and he felt the people were entitled to them.

With a minimum of two men at each polling station, Mr. Hunter felt the new system would cost at least $400 additional to the $1,500 spent at the last off-year election in Victoria.

Bodies Of 22 In Montana Plane Wreck

No Survivors Of Mountain Crash

BUTTE, Mont. (AP)—All 22 persons aboard a Northwest Airlines plane which crashed in mountains six miles east of here were reported dead by ground parties which reached the scene today after wading through deep snow.

After a survey of the burned wreckage, routine clearance was obtained from Coroner Kyle Scott at Whitehall to bring the bodies here.

The big airliner with 18 passengers and a crew of four disappeared Tuesday in a blizzard shortly after it had left Helena, Mont., headed for Butte. It was bound from Chicago to Seattle.

Several residents in the dense, mountainous country reported hearing a "terrific explosion."

A helicopter spotted the wreckage this morning, about 200 yards below the backbone of the continental divide.

The plane apparently was letting down exactly on course between Whitehall and Butte when it smashed into the mountainside.

Rush Of Fires But Damage Total Light

Fires came in pairs in the city today, but none were serious.

At 9:44 this morning, firemen answered a call to a chimney fire on Washington Avenue.

Three minutes later, another truck was sent to the Store Street waterfront to extinguish a small oil fire in the hold of the old coastal freighter Southold which is having her engines removed.

There was a lull of nearly three hours, then firemen were off again—this time to a chimney fire on Oscar Street.

Twenty-seven minutes went by and more men were on the trucks to put out still another chimney fire, this time on Beechwood Avenue.

Cold air and stiff northerly breeze apparently caused some householders to stoke up too heavily.

ONE-POUND BABY FIGHTS FOR LIFE

HAMILTON (CP)—Believed to be one of the smallest babies ever born in Canada, a one-pound baby girl still survives in a hospital incubator here.

The child, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Davis of Hamilton, was born prematurely at home last Saturday and taken to the hospital in a police cruiser. Despite her tiny size the infant appears physically normal.

Hospital officials say her progress depends greatly on her ability to take food. She will be in the incubator for several months.

U.N. Pressed To Order China Reds Out Of Korea

U.S. Tells Council Invading Communists Now Total 30,000; Forces Continue To Grow

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—The United States today charged the Chinese Communists with direct military intervention in Korea, and urged the United Nations' Security Council to require the Mao Tse-tung regime to withdraw its forces.

Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate, told the council there are indications that 30,000 Chinese Communist troops are in Korea and that the number is increasing. He said the United Nations should assist in settling any problems relating to Korea's northern frontier. Then he added:

"But in offering assurance, the Security Council must also see to it that the authorities in Peking are under no illusion that their conduct is condoned by the United Nations or that the organized world community can accept this thinly disguised invasion of Korea."

"The Chinese Communists have imposed a grave danger upon the world—the danger that the present conflict may not be limited to the Korean area. The United States on its own behalf and in the exercise of the responsibilities of the unified command has made every effort to do the same. We have sought publicly to reassure the Chinese Communist regime that neither the United States nor the forces of the United Nations operating in Korea represent any threat to the territorial integrity or security of the legitimate interests of states which border on Korea."

"This council is the guardian of international peace and security and must require the Chinese Communist regime to withdraw its forces from Korea and to refrain from further unlawful assistance, direct or indirect, to the North Korean aggressor."

Pet Lovers Rally To Back Proposal For Animal Cemetery In Victoria

By JIM McKEACHIE

Pro's and con's of a pet cemetery for Victoria are starting to be tossed around, and it looks as though animal lovers have won the first round.

A woman has offered to donate a good proportion of the cost of purchasing land for a park-like pet cemetery.

She wants a memorial to her late husband who was fond of dogs, and thinks the cemetery idea is the answer.

She's getting some support, too. A small women's club which is staging a dance towards the end of the month has offered to hand over part of the proceeds to a pet cemetery fund.

'ONE OF THE FAMILY'

The idea is not to spend huge sums on the project, but to have a place where pets, which are considered by many as "one of the family," can be buried at reasonable cost.

Some animal lovers say they are content to bury pets in the backyard. That, of course, is what has to be done at present. A retired South Fairfield resident sadly buried his Pomeranian of 11 years Tuesday—among the roses in his front garden. But he said he would rather have placed the remains of the dog in a little plot set aside for the purpose.

The woman who is ready to donate money to give a pet cemetery a start works during the day, and thus has little time to organize a committee. She is willing to take part in such a

Sweeping Gains By G.O.P. Scored In Six Key States

NEW YORK (CP)—The Democratic Party barely retained control of the United States Congress today after suffering defeats in at least six key states to a resurgent Republican Party.

The Democrats emerged with narrow leads in both the Senate and House of Representatives, but observers felt President Truman's "Fair Deal" program and foreign policy might be seriously hampered as a result of the new political line-up in Washington and throughout important states.

The Senate will line up in January with 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans. At noon (E.S.T.) the Democrats clinched control of the 435-seat House of Representatives by winning their 219th seat.

The Democrats technically had won the election. But the margin of victory was so narrow, and the Republican gains were so sweeping, that the election result clearly was a Democratic defeat. At 9 a.m. this was the standing of the new 82nd Congress: Senate: Democrats retained control of the 96-seat chamber 49 to 47.

House of Representatives (435 seats): Democrats elected 218, Republican elected 168, undecided 49.

The Senate division was the closest since 1930.

The Republicans recorded a net gain of five seats in the Senate they needed seven to win control. The Republicans picked up seats in Idaho, Illinois, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Utah, and California, where administration stalwarts went down to defeat. They lost in Missouri where Forrest Donnell was beaten.

With Taft, Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado, won re-election. He defeated a strong "Fair Deal" supporter in Democrat John A. Carroll.

Alpine Guides Reach Scene Of Airliner Wreck

CHAMONIX, France (Reuter)

Four French Alpine guides today reached the wreck of an Indian Constellation airliner just below the summit of 15,781-foot Mont Blanc, where it crashed with 48 persons aboard Friday. The guides had struggled on through the deadly hazards of biting cold, blizzards and avalanches because an order to abandon the quest, dropped to all rescue parties by parachute, had not reached them.

Binocular-equipped watchers in Chamonix saw them move around the wreckage and then ski down to a refuge hut where they had spent the night.

There was no hope here that the guides might have found someone alive in the Air-India Constellation because it was thought no one could survive five nights in temperatures about 58 degrees below zero.

STATE SECRETARY ACHESON

Acheson Not Bugged By G.O.P. Attack

WASHINGTON (AP and UP)—Republicans today demanded the dismissal of Secretary of State Dean Acheson on the basis of a "mandate" from the voters in Tuesday's elections.

Acheson replied speedily at a press conference, making it plain he had no intention of resigning. He had been told that Republican leader Harold Stassen had interpreted the election results as a vote of no confidence in Acheson.

The presidential aspirant saw the outcome of the polling as "a significant repudiation of administration far eastern policy."

"He would assume," he said, "with these election results that Secretary Acheson would resign."

Many Republican candidates campaigned on the Acheson foreign policy issue. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and a leading Republican spokesman in the campaign, refused to suggest a successor to Acheson. He added that it was incumbent upon President Truman "to consult with Republican Senate leaders, one of whom he should appoint."

He recalled the theme which Republicans have been hammering home to the voters that if Gen. MacArthur's advice on far eastern policy had been taken "four or five years ago, we wouldn't be in this spot in Korea."

C.C.F. May Seek Mayor's Chair

VANCOUVER (CP)—The C.C.F. may contest the mayoralty in Vancouver's civic elections this year.

Arthur Turner, member of the Legislature for Vancouver East and civic campaign chief for the party, said today the feeling of party members is definitely that a candidate should be entered.

VANCOUVER CLAIMS SQUARE FLYING SAUCER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Flying saucers are reported to have returned to the skies over Vancouver, but this time they are reported to be square in shape.

One resident said he saw two of the objects traveling at terrific speed over the Little Mountain district.

Vancouver International Airport officials said they had received no report of any mysterious flying objects.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

SALUTE TO SERVICE

JUST AT THIS time when hospital affairs are looming so large on the public horizon, it might be well to direct wider attention to a voluntary group which is not as well known as it should be and without whose indefatigable efforts over the years many a community would be hospital-less.

I refer to the auxiliaries, that hard-working band of public-spirited women who are the quiet "Marthas," never relaxing their "service with a smile" and working their fingers to the bone to provide, sometimes the hospital building itself, but more often much-needed equipment, and those little extras and niceties which contribute so much to the comfort and well-being of the patient.

THOUSANDS OF THEM

THROUGHOUT British Columbia there are 85 such auxiliaries, totaling 2,540 active members and 1,918 associate members, according to the provincial report presented at the annual meeting of the B.C. Hospitals Association held in Vancouver last week.

As may be imagined, the introduction of hospital insurance did not make the raising of funds any easier for these auxiliaries but, despite that, they raised the considerable sum of $134,369 last year—an increase of $19,269 over the previous 12 months. And they did it in the myriad, painstaking ways in which women always raise funds, whether it be for hospitals, church causes, or charitable purposes—by tea and bazaars, dues and donations, by cooking and sewing.

MANIFOLD GIFTS

OUT OF THE MONEY so raised, they have contributed manifold gifts to the hospitals of the province. Just to cite only a few things: Installed heating and laundry plants, provided a power-sewing machine, baby-weighing scales, portable X-ray machines, oxygen tents, electric cardiograph machine, oxygen units and fittings, oxygen tanks, radio-extension cylinder for X-ray, diathermy machines, a midge net, sterilizers, bronchoscopes and cystoscopic equipment, electric plaster cast-cutter, resuscitators, two cassettes for X-ray department, operating tables.

Complete furniture for private and sunrooms, incubators, electric urns, awnings, children's cribs, electric fans, kitchens and bathrooms completely remodeled and equipped, wheel chairs, stretchers, radio for public wards, complete with separate earphone and plugs for each bed, fridges, deep freeze unit—and a host of other things.

REHABILITATION AIDS

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY equipment and supplies, porch furniture and dishes were provided for the Rehabilitation Centre. Payments were made of outstanding bills for needy students and special nurses provided; $5,000 was donated by the auxiliaries toward a foundation fund to help the dependents of veterans confined to hospitals, as well as money raised to pay the cost of occupational therapy for long-term patients. A bursary of $1,000 and a $50 scholarship was provided for nurses.

Sewing has always been an outstanding activity, thousands of articles have been made, besides mending of supplies and preparation of surgical dressings. Some auxiliaries still provide all necessary linen for the hospitals in their district—a big item. Two of the smallest auxiliaries have for the last seven years been raising funds, bit by bit, in the hope of having a hospital built for their community. Now their dream is being realized.

BIG OAKS FROM . . .

LIKE ALL GOOD things, the W.A. movement started in a very small way. It was away back in 1965 in St. Catharines, Ont., that a band of 12 women, seeing the great need for a hospital there, went from door to door soliciting donations—of not less than 5 cents nor more than 50 cents. They also asked for gifts of cooking utensils and bed linen. With the money thus collected, they rented a house which was used as a hospital until 1978 when the first hospital in Ontario was opened and the first training school for nurses founded.

Those pioneer women built better than they knew. The work done by the W.A. of British Columbia for the hospitals is one of the greatest voluntary undertakings in the interests of public welfare and, as such, should be appreciated. And, as I observed earlier, the variety of projects they employ to raise the necessary funds attests to their ingenuity, imagination, resourcefulness and, above all, to their spirit of self-sacrifice.

Good Progress Noted On Oak Bay Paving Program

A total of 11,000 feet of curbing has been constructed in Oak Bay and some of the streets involved have been paved in the past three months, according to figures released today by municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave.

The Victoria Paving Co. installed curbs on Linkleas, and Armstrong Avenues, Dalhousie Street from Dunlevy to Cadboro Bay Road, Ansonb Place, Pacific Avenue west of Cadboro Bay Road, Hamiota Street and Lincoln Road north of Estevan Avenue.

Municipal workers graded all the streets ready for base gravel and final paving by the private company.

Paving has been completed on Linkleas Avenue, Hamiota Street and Lincoln Road as far as the Uplands boundary.

By the end of the year, the paving of Armstrong Avenue, Ansonb Place, Dalhousie Street and Pacific Avenue should be completed, Mr. Musgrave said.

ACTIVE YEAR

In setting out work to be done during the balance of the year, the engineer noted that "all in all we have had a very active year."

Still to be done are the following: Graveling of Larkdowne Road and laying of six and four-inch water mains on the street.

Allenby Street must be made passable for the winter following installation of the new 12-inch water main there.

Sewer, water and storm water drains must be laid on part of Plumer Street and the road then made passable.

Some work is necessary on Valdez Place to make it passable for the winter.

A surface drain extension on Byng Street.

Repairs to Oak Bay Boathouse are to be completed.

Cubs Reorganized

LUXTON—Wolf Cub pack has been reorganized with James Doran as cubmaster. At the last meeting Mrs. Irene Richards, retiring leader, presented a first star to Jimmie Creaser. New sixers appointed were Jimmie Creaser, Edward Hyde, Merritt Staton and Kenneth Charters. Larry Doran, Frank Williams, Harry White and Gordon Maber were made seconds.

TALK ON INDIANS

WILSON Duff, Provincial Museum anthropologist, will address members of the British Columbia Historical Association at a general meeting to be held in the provincial library at 8.30, Nov. 16. His subject will be Fraser Valley Indians at Work. The address will be illustrated with lantern slides.

1,600 Admissions A Year To B.C. Mental Hospitals

Five cents out of every tax dollar in B.C. is spent on the care of the mentally ill, it is revealed in a paper prepared by R. A. Pennington, deputy provincial secretary, who estimates the cost in this field will run to $70,000,000 in 10 years.

Mr. Pennington recently returned from a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association at St. Louis, Mo., where modern methods in treatment of mentally ill persons were discussed and mental hospital design and management was reviewed.

On the B.C. outlook, the deputy provincial secretary notes that five persons out of every 1,000 are in a mental hospital and that admissions to mental hospitals run at 1,600 a year.

The bed capacity of mental hospitals in the province approximates the combined total of all other hospitals.

MORE RESEARCH

Mr. Pennington, whole department administers provincial mental hospitals, points to the need for more research in the mental illness field of medicine. He says only 95 cents of every $65 now spent on mental illness now is used for research.

Lack of outpatient clinics in B.C. is noted by the deputy in his paper, also. He says there is great need for an observation and treatment centre for maladjusted youth, and rehabilitation and re-education program to assist the patient on his return to his community.

On his trip east, Mr. Pennington was accompanied by Dr. M. Gee, director of mental health services, and F. A. Matheson, business manager of the province's mental hospitals.

After their attendance at the St. Louis meeting, they visited day hospitals and studied methods of out-patient care.

Cost of providing care for the mentally ill is reduced with day hospitals and out-patient clinics, according to Mr. Pennington. They place more emphasis on quick treatment, too.

It was not generally realized, says Mr. Pennington, that mental illnesses are as various as physical ones. Many cases do not require hospital treatment, or require it for only short periods.

One hospital in the U.S. has only 60 beds, but it had a record of giving 13,000 patient days of treatment during the year.

Horticulturists Elect Officers

William Pynn, last year's vice-president, was elected Tuesday night to take over presidency of the Victoria Horticultural Society. He was the choice of members who gathered at City Hall for the annual meeting to succeed the retiring president, Ken Robertson.

Jack Beasly, Times garden columnist, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the organization for the fifth consecutive year, and Len Arnell was made vice-president.

Named to serve as executive committee members were Mrs. C. Freeborn, Miss M. Hamer, A. Rhodes, G. Springer, S. Lang, A. Johnston, T. Sawyer, A. Fray, Mrs. G. Winter and Mrs. R. Etheridge.

Dr. P. Olsen Joins Veterinary Clinic

Dr. Peter Olsen has left for Washington, D.C., following a visit here with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Olsen, 1543 Despard.

He goes to take up an appointment as first lieutenant at the veterinary clinic of the U.S. Army Medical Centre.

A former student at Victoria public schools, Victoria High School and Victoria College, he received his degree in veterinary medicine in June, 1949, and for the past year applied himself to postgraduate training at a veterinary school in Boston.

Salvationists Get $8,400 In Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Salvation Army one-night drive for funds, based on Victoria's now-famous "Lights On" campaign of Oct. 2, raised $8,400 Tuesday night toward the building of a new citadel. It was the largest sum ever collected in Nanaimo in a charity drive. Service clubs, women's organizations and youth groups took part in the canvass.

Sidewalk For Oak Bay Side Foul Bay Road

Work on a sidewalk on the Oak Bay side of Foul Bay Road north of Fort Street, will start before the end of this week, A. S. G. Musgrave, municipal engineer, said today.

The walk, which eventually will be built to Lansdowne Road, will be constructed by the municipality.

Mr. Musgrave said it should be completed as far as Haultain Street by the end of the year.

Meanwhile, pedestrian travel along Cadboro Bay Road north of Bowker Avenue, heretofore hazardous due to fairly heavy traffic, has become safer.

A new sidewalk on the east side of the street from Bowker Avenue to Estevan Avenue has been completed, and there is a walk on the west side from the latter street as far as West Thompson Street.

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Dan McPherson, a Port Alberni boat owner, told today how he barely escaped with his life when his boat burned to the water's edge at Ucluelet.

He said he was awakened by the smell of smoke and found his boat, the Forbes Isle, in flames. He had to jump to the wharf in his underclothing to escape.

He lost his wallet, containing $500, along with valuable fishing gear in the flames.

Tim Eli Cordick, also found guilty of the same offence, was remanded by Judge H. H. Shandley to await a probation officer's report.

Judge Shandley described the assault as "cowardly, vicious and bloody." Dunn spent two days in the Royal Jubilee Hospital recovering from wounds received when he was struck about the face with an empty soft drink crate.

Democratic Upsets Highlight 'Off-Year' U.S. Election As G.O.P. Scores Big Gains

POLITICAL SMOKESCREEN SHROUDS SEAWAY PROJECT

OTTAWA (BUP)—A political smokescreen which shrouded the multi-million dollar St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Development began to lift today and Canada hoped for an immediate start on the project.

Re-election of Governor Thomas E. Dewey in New York seemed to indicate a start would be made either on the development as a power project alone, or according to the over-all master plan.

The bitterly-fought New York gubernatorial contest left the project shelved for any concrete action for several months. The Canadian government was all in favor of the project.

Californians Give Warren Third Term

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A smashing vote in Tuesday's election over Democrat James Roosevelt assured Republican Earl Warren a third term as California's governor—and a crack, maybe, at bigger things in '52.

Returns from the day's balloting pointed strongly to election of fast-rising young Representative Richard M. Nixon (Rep.) to the U.S. Senate. He interpreted the vote as a mandate to continue his fight against President Truman's foreign policy.

His opponent, Representative Helen Gahagan-Douglas (Dem.), refused to concede. The former actress, a 100 per cent New Dealer, was warmly endorsed by President Truman for her support of his program.

Warren's return to another four years in office was never in doubt. Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, failed to challenge the popular chief executive in even democratic Los Angeles County.

Roosevelt conceded at midnight. He sent his "sincere congratulations" to the executive mansion in Sacramento where the usual election-night cheer was missing.

IT WAS HAPPY SCENE

Surprise Party For 50th Golden Wedding

By DAVE STOCK

For a brief while Tuesday afternoon, one of the usually quiet, 12-bed wards in the women's wing of St. Joseph's Hospital took on rather a festive atmosphere.

The occasion which prompted it came as a surprise, especially to 73-year-old Mrs. Mabel Holyoake in the far corner against the wall.

Mrs. Holyoake had been feeling better than usual so had dressed. Sitting beside her bed, chatting with the patient across the way, she hoped someone would come to see her. She was particularly anxious to have a visitor because this was a special day for her—a wedding anniversary, and a rather important one at that.

Mrs. Holyoake was thinking, of course, of her husband. She wasn't expecting him, though, because he was in hospital himself—a permanent patient at the D.V.A. Hospital on Richmond Road. If only she was well, she could go to see him.

As time went by, other patients in the room welcomed husbands and friends but nobody came to call on Mrs. Holyoake. She began to think no one would come.

Then, suddenly, the cheerful young nurses were leading in six... seven... eight people to Mrs. Holyoake's corner. And stepping out jauntily among them was her husband, George.

"Well, I never..." Mrs. Holyoake began to exclaim. She stopped at the 80-year-old husband took her arm and kissed her tenderly on the cheek. "Happy 50th anniversary," he said.

Things moved fast then. Three of the visiting ladies turned out to be Mrs. W. S. Webster, Mrs. R. W. Mercer and Mrs. W. Carpenter from the Lake Hill Women's Institute, of which Mrs. Holyoake is an honorary member.

PRESENTS, FLOWERS
They presented presents,

flowers and greetings from the other members.

Two other ladies in the group introduced themselves as Miss M. Pitts and Mrs. J. H. Wilson, regular Red Cross visitors at the D.V.A. Hospital. They explained they had come along to look after Mr. Holyoake and to present gifts from the D.V.A. Hospital staff.

"Soon the nurses were back on the scene. They had disappeared momentarily but now were back with a large iced cake, complete with 50 burning candles. The cake, they explained, was a special anniversary present from the D.V.A. Hospital kitchen.

The nurses hadn't forgotten to bring a knife. They produced the biggest and shiniest they could find, complete with ribbon. Mr. and Mrs. Holyoake both held on to the handle to make the initial cut.

Everyone in the room, patients and visitors, clapped heartily and offered good wishes.

Wax from the burning candles by this time was dripping on the icing so husband and wife joined to blow them out.

The Holyoakes had a nice chat and everyone present had a piece of cake before the visiting hour was over.

Mr. and Mrs. Holyoake agreed it was a good anniversary after all.

Dewey Leads G.O.P. In Election Gains

N.Y. Governor Wins Third Term; Sen. Taft Wins, Gov. Bowles Loses

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, winning a third term by a substantial majority, led a parade of Republicans capturing governors' offices. Republican entries picked up posts formerly filled by Democrats in Connecticut, Maryland, Nevada and Colorado.

One of the Democratic victims was Governor Chester Bowles of Connecticut, a "Fair Deal" supporter, who lost to Republican Representative John Davis Lodge.

Some Democrats survived the Republican onslaught, notably senators Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and Brien McMahon and William Benton of Connecticut.

The fifth Senate Democratic seat to go to the Republicans was that previously held in Idaho by Senator Glen Taylor.

Other New York results followed forecasts with Democrat-Liberal Senator Herbert H. Lehman winning re-election and Vincent Impellitteri, an Independent, beating his Democratic and Republican opponents for mayor of New York City.

The defeat of Sen. Scott Lucas in Illinois was regarded as a particular blow to the administration's handling of international affairs.

Lucas had charged his victorious Republican opponent, former Representative Everett Dirksen, with holding "isolationist" views.

Senator Homer E. Capehart, Indiana Republican who had criticized severely the administration's handling of international issues and the President's "Fair Deal" program, won in Indiana.

The re-election of Sen. Robert A. Taft in Ohio and of Millikin in Colorado, as well as the defeat of Democratic Governor Bowles in Connecticut, gave signs that voters in widely separated areas were cold to Truman's "fair deal" program.

Taft attacked the program just as vigorously as Bowles defended it.

Returns early today gave Representative Richard M. Nixon, Republican, a senatorial victory

Liberals Of Ontario Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives move out of Toronto today and the Liberals take over. The Progressive Conservatives, ruling party in Ontario politics, with 53 of the 90 seats in the provincial Legislature, wound up their annual meeting Tuesday with a speech from Premier Frost, who said that Ontario needs both skilled and unskilled workers.

The vanguard of some 900 delegates began arriving today for the Ontario Liberal leadership convention, which will open tomorrow and winds up Friday afternoon with the selection of a new leader to succeed Farquhar Oliver.

A sense of urgency gripped early arrivals among the Liberals, who feel there is a possibility of a provincial general election in 1951.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 3, 1950

The 82nd Congress

ALTHOUGH THE DEMOCRATIC Party in the United States fared better at the polls in yesterday's "off-year" election than it did in 1946, a majority of one for the administration in the Senate will bring little cheer to President Truman, even though the voting strength in the House of Representatives as this is written will give the Republicans only 185 out of 435 seats.

The campaign which closed last Monday night was a mixture of bitter domestic controversy in several states and criticism of the administration's conduct of foreign affairs in general and its Asiatic policy in particular. It may be said that Mr. Truman's stock dropped considerably in the last week as it became evident that the war in Korea was taking a turn for the worse. The chief executive was not to know, of course, that a new North Korean offensive was about to start with the substantial assistance from Chinese Communists and modern Russian-made weapons, including jet fighters. What effect this temporary change in military fortunes in the Pacific arena had cannot be precisely evaluated. But the party in office, obviously, was the target at which the voting populace could direct its slings and arrows if it felt so inclined.

One or two facets of the results of the voting as known at the moment are significant. The re-election of "Mr. Republican"—Senator Robert Taft in Ohio—spite of Labor's concentrated efforts to defeat him is one. Another is the overwhelming victory scored by Governor

Warren in California over the irrepressible "Jimmy" Roosevelt, the son of the late President. And when Californian Republicans let themselves go in their criticism of Democrats they do so in a verbal job that figuratively drips with political gore! It was fairly certain last spring, moreover, that Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, a Democratic member of the House of Representatives in the last Congress, would have her work cut out to defeat her Republican opponent in her bid for a seat in the Senate. She is an exceedingly clever woman; but in recent weeks, and notwithstanding her enlistment of all her former stage glamour, it began to dawn on the electorate that more than forensic eloquence is essential for membership in the Upper Chamber—that body on Capitol Hill which jealously guards its treaty-making rights.

The close result yesterday, therefore, poses the question as to what influence now will be exerted by the Republicans in respect of the administration's foreign policy. Both parties are implacably opposed to totalitarianism, whether it be of the Left or Right; both parties are committed to the bi-partisan approach in dealing with international affairs. Thus, particularly in the light of the uncertain nature of the existing emergency, it can be assumed that Mr. Truman and his advisers of whatever stripe will discover a solid piece of common ground on which to work out the policies that will contribute to the easing of the tense world situation.

Moscow's Hypocrisy

WHAT HAS TO BE FACED BY THE United Nations, in Korea or anywhere else the hydra-headed monster of totalitarianism raises its ugly head, is the plain fact that the Soviet Union will have to be dealt with, sooner or later, with the only argument it understands. That is force, whether political force, economic force, or the force of arms. All the poppycock in which Mr. Vishinsky has indulged at Lake Success or Flushing Meadow, or through the instrumentality of Communist journalistic mouthpieces in Moscow and the satellite nations behind the Iron Curtain, should be written off by the Western nations as the "Big Lie" which Hitler described as the soothing syrup by which the "effete" democracies could be lulled to sleep.

The democracies, fortunately, are neither asleep nor fooled by the technique begun by Moscow in San Francisco more than five years ago, continued by Gromyko at the succeeding meetings of the Security Council, and followed by Malik's version of Moscow's obstructionism in the same agency of the United Nations. It is always the same old cry: The western nations—who, above all else, want nothing but a peaceful association with the world, including Russia—are the capitalistic-monopolistic aggressors who have set their hearts and minds on the destruction of the Soviet Union and its peoples. Men like Stalin, Molotov, Gromyko, Malik and others who, at least, have some knowledge of the manner in which the peoples of free lands move and have their being, know this argument to be without the slightest foundation in fact.

Yet it is the argument which is being drummed into the ears of the peoples of all the world through the agency of Radio Moscow and emphasized by a highly-specialized media of propaganda supported and expanded by the parlor pinks of lands which give them a good living and living conditions unknown in the Soviet Union. Same people everywhere, of course, wonder what the world is coming to. As we see it, as the events in Korea, in Tibet, in eastern Europe, not forgetting the machinations of Moscow's agents in Italy and France, reveal, the day may soon dawn when it will be necessary to ring the bell of liberty—universal liberty—whose claxon call will mean action of the kind which is repugnant to decent folk everywhere. If that tone means war, however, the responsibility for it will rest squarely on the shoulders of the men in the Kremlin.

A Move To Encourage Voting

ON NUMEROUS OCCASIONS THIS newspaper has advocated extension of voting facilities for civic elections, to make it possible for residents to mark their ballots in their own districts. That course has been endorsed because it is our belief that more people would be encouraged to discharge their duties at the polls if it were not necessary to make a special trip downtown for that specific purpose. Admittedly such a move would not be necessary if apathy were not so apparent on the part of the citizens who are entitled to vote but who do not bestir themselves on polling day. The recommendation of the finance committee, that four extra stations be added to the existing one in the Market Building, promises to go part way toward that end. Five stations may not be enough. On the other hand, they should assist citizens who object to making a trip downtown to cast their votes. For that reason the proposal deserves support—support, incidentally, which can only be effective if a larger percentage of our people mark their ballots on the second Thursday in December.

Tibet Adventure Closing Door Of U.N. To Chinese Communists

By BRUCE BOSSAT From New York

THE Chinese Communists are reported to be marching upon Tibet, the roof of the world, storied land of the high Himalayas. Of their soldiers, the Reds are saying: "It is their glorious task to liberate the people of Tibet and help them overcome their sufferings and difficulties."

It may well be imagined how the 3,000,000 Tibetans, who have lived long in the independence that goes with isolation, are looking forward to the Communist brand of "liberation." It should be interesting to watch how they respond to the Reds' demonstration of affection by force of arms.

The Indian government, whose Prime Minister Nehru always manages to distrust western words but see reason and hope in Communist declarations, has told its envoy to Peking to express its "surprise and regret" to the Red Chinese leaders over the Tibetan invasion.

NO SURPRISE
To the rest of the world it is not a surprise but only one more example of ruthless aggression unprovoked and unjustified. And it ought to lead the United States and certain other countries in the United Nations to adopt a stiffer attitude toward the admission of Red China into the U.N. Before the Korean war, we had let it be known that although we wouldn't promote Red China's admission, we wouldn't veto it, either. The belief then was that the necessary votes for admission could soon be mustered. The war sidetracked the issue, but the U.S. has not altered its official position.

SHOULD CHANGE
As of now, it should. It isn't enough that the Chinese regime represents 400 million people and successfully maintains order in Chinese territory. We ought to demand that Red China give firm evidence of its intent to live by the principles of the U.N. charter.

The Tibetan adventure currently disqualifies the Chinese Communists from U.N. admission if that be the standard. And they should get no further consideration until they have not only abandoned this particular aggression but have forsaken force as a deliberate instrument of policy. If they will not do so, let them remain indefinitely outside the U.N., no matter how many millions they profess to represent.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

NORTH Americans had no trouble seeing through the Big Lie of the late Dr. Goebbels. They are often stupefied by their own propaganda. Something like that is under way on this continent today. Our ballyhoo has convinced us that we are doing more for our own defence, far more, than we shall in fact be doing for some time to come. All we have seen yet in the defence program is a Hollywood premiere. The real work has yet to start.

Even on the surface the last few weeks have been discouraging. The recent conference of the Atlantic nations in Washington ended in deadlock on the great issue which it had met to resolve.

EVERYONE else wished to arm the Germans. The French, agreeing to this essential policy in principle, demanded a set of conditions which were quite impossible as the French might have known. In a word, they demanded that Europe form a kind of supranational government for defence purposes, that the Schuman Plan be established to weld the heavy industry of the European nations together—and most impossible of all—that German troops be distributed in units no larger than regiments throughout an international army. The other nations could not accept these conditions, first, because the French plan for political integration in Europe might take years and postpone the defence program when there is not a month to lose; second, because German troops cannot be distributed thin among the troops of other nations; and, third, because the Germans do not propose to be so distributed.

FOR THESE reasons the Atlantic nations had to postpone the whole issue in the hope that the French will change their minds. They left Washington unshaken in their basic belief that Europe cannot be defended without the re-arming of western Germany.

That is the core of the problem but there are many other angles too complex and too secret for public discussion. The real question, however, is obvious enough—when are the sixty-odd paper divisions required for the defence of Europe going to emerge from mere paper into actual life? And even if they do emerge will they be enough to defend Europe or at least to deter Russia from attacking it?

For security reasons this question is not answered but one fact emerges from the recent Atlantic meeting as clear and stark as the Washington monument: The rearmament of America is not yet rolling and will not roll for months to come.

IT IS commonly supposed that inflation is under way in America, that goods are getting short and prices rising because the armament program is cutting sharply into civilian supplies. This is quite untrue. Our economy has hardly begun to feel the effects of rearmament simply because rearmament has not yet taken any sizable chunks of materials, machinery or manpower.

Why, then, have we felt inflation and a sharp rise in living costs during the last few months? Almost entirely for psychological reasons. America was set last spring for at least a mild recession by autumn. Then Uncle Joe moved into Korea and presented us with an unprecedented boom. Fearing war, business rushed into the market to pile up supplies of raw materials and the ordinary householder rushed in to buy a car or a refrigerator.

THIS "anticipatory buying" by the economists call it was the biggest thing of its sort ever witnessed in America and it alone pushed prices up. By midsummer, 1951, we shall feel the crunch of the rearmament program. The arms factories will then be using up machinery, manpower and materials, creating shortages of various goods and thus pressing prices upward. But it will have to be a mighty big program before it becomes as inflationary as the buying spree of last summer.

In pure economics—as if any such thing existed—there is no reason for an inflation as serious as that of the last six months, unless the armament program grows far beyond its present size. That is to say, if the people of America behave themselves and refuse to hoard, if labor is reasonable in its wage demands and if governments tax hard enough to hold public purchasing power down we need not fear a disaster.

THESE are big ifs. No one, literally no one can know, what is ahead of us in 1951—except perhaps Uncle Joe who, by scaring us and forcing us to arm, can inflate us like a balloon whenever he likes.

STOMACH ULCERS

Windsor Star

An expert psychoanalyst—we presume all psychoanalysts are experts—tells us the way to head off stomach ulcers is to fall in love. They are a result of emotional hunger.

Now that's all very well. But suppose a man is happily married—and even unhappily married? He can't very well fall in love with his wife all over again if he is still in love with her; and he is unlikely to do so if he isn't still in love with her. Must he fall in love with some other woman just as a precaution against stomach ulcers? Would that not create another cause of ulcers?

In most cases the psychoanalyst's cure might well be worse than the disease—bad as the disease is. Someone should psychoanalyze the psychoanalyst.

STATE OF MIND

The photo in the Times, depicting the "enormous crowd gathered to hear Pope Pius XII proclaim as Roman Catholic dogma 1,500-year-old church belief that (the) body of Blessed Virgin Mary ascended into heaven and was reunited with her soul," only too obviously points to the fact that religion is a state of mind, and, as such, anything is possible if the mind can be sufficiently disciplined.

DIVERT VS. AVERT

Fair Play in your issue of Nov. 3 questions my right to use the word "avert," preferring that more generally used, namely, "divert." If she knows more than Daniel Webster, then I bow to her superior knowledge. The great lexicographer gives the meanings of these two words as follows:

Divert: to turn off from my course.
Avert: to turn or cause to turn.
As a matter of fact, both words are incorrect when used in a dual sense. One can divert away from any given objective, but not toward the same.

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER

The letter which recently appeared in the Times over the name of W. F. Cressall would appear to be the expression representative of a large number of citizens.

One can scarcely read the daily newspaper without being assured that there is a serious national need, as well as an international need. We are considered as a "Christian" nation and the gravity of the world situation calls for strong and serious leadership. We feel sure that all religious denominations and groups should welcome a call of the leaders of our nation, provincial, federal and local bodies for a national day of prayer at this crisis hour.

BONES OF CONTENTION

Someone expressed his surprise to me, upon hearing that Peter's bones had been found under the Basilica in Vatican City, whereas he had heard five years ago that Peter's bones had been found under the Basilica of San Sebastien in Spain.

He wondered how they were going to explain these duplicated "bones of contention!" That is very easy, said I—for resourceful people! Have not you heard of the two skulls of Julius Caesar? The one was the skull of Julius as a boy, the other one, his skull as an adult! So with Peter! Anyone not believing this new dogma shall be excommunicated. The statue of the "lady of Fatima" during its trip around the world was being flown from the States to India for a scheduled parade there. Only one newspaper had the temerity to announce that the plane which carried her was wrecked and all and everything on board was completely burned in mid-ocean!

But, "the (a) lady of Fatima" was paraded in India as scheduled just the same! This miracle (!?) only happened last year! Truly, only if Christ makes man free he shall be free indeed from superstition and soul-enslaving religions!

HUNTER AND HUNTED

My attention has been drawn to the correspondence in the columns of certain local newspapers in regard to hunters. Nothing is more disgusting to a rural population than that such a condition should exist in this day and age in any democratic country.

When a man applies for a car license, he must take a driver's test and pass certain requirements to prove he is at least sane; but there is no such sanity test for any idiot who wants to run amuck in the suburbs of our fair lands.

We sometimes wonder if we have met all the samples of manhood who travel the country with red patches sticking here and there in case they might be shot at, as often happens, by that bosom pal who shoots shadows and spooks in the early and late hours of a foggy day, when it is impossible to tell the difference between red patches, farmers' cows, or even the farmer, and cares less. Many a farmer is ordered off his own land, in language unprintable, by so-called sportsmen, fences cut and trampled down.

We wonder how long such conditions will be allowed by the laws of our land or what action would be taken against the rural residents if we were to turn up in city and suburb gardens with dogs, shotguns and cars, hunting some poor unwary bird, leaving it to die in a bruised, mangled condition under some hedge? Then go home, well pleased with our day's sport!

WHITHER INDONESIA?

I would like to draw attention to the editorial in Saturday Evening Post, page 10, of October 14: "Why Do We Bully Our Friends and Reward Our Foes?" It starts out:

"When our state department pressured the Dutch into quitting Indonesia last year, few people here at home realized what it was all about. Now we do. The Indonesian leaders, who have governed the South Asian archipelago since last December, haven't yet had an election. Some of their highest officials have signed the communists' so-called 'peace appeal.' But, above all, they have let the whole free world down by refusing to back United Nations and United States' action in Korea."

But better read the editorial for yourself. What is happening there was foreseen by every one of the more than dozen American journalists who visited Indonesia last year, to see and hear for themselves, most of whom perished in that plane crash near Bombay while returning to the States, but whose advance reports were published late last year in "Last Testimony" by the "The Knickerbocker," New York 20, N.Y. (You, Mr. Editor, published one of those reports.)

News from private sources—I have a married daughter in Palembang, South Sumatra—confirm what this editorial points out, down to the petty nuisance of delay or non-delivery of mail if the address is not written in Indonesian!

A few weeks ago, at the Chicago Round Table, the Indonesian ambassador to the U.S.A. had to acknowledge the fact that, generally speaking, the living standard in Indonesia is now 10 to 15 per cent lower than it was before the Japanese occupation (an American just back from Indonesia, also on the panel, put the question straight to that ambassador).

Nehru Interview

Another in a Series
By L. NORMAN SMITH
Associate Editor of The Ottawa Journal

NEW DELHI—Nehru—a small figure as he sits behind his huge desk with its vase of flowers and a dozen different pens—is most impressive when he talks of China. He is agnostic that the world and U.N. pretends China isn't there. Non-recognition of China, he says, has been the root of a lot of the world's recent troubles.

"I am convinced in the long run China will retain its Chinese-ness. It is too much, too big, too old, to be swallowed by Russia. Communism in China is essentially Chinese. The Chinese are tremendous realists. The government policy in China now is moderate. Hundreds of millions of peasant proprietors have been created in China. What could be a greater line against Soviet communism."

Nehru's office is lined with maps, Indian maps and Asian maps and world maps. He talks with the polish and education of a Harrow and Cambridge man which he is, and he looks at India with the eyes of a man who has seen the world. Perhaps this broadness enables him to consider Korea in itself not as important as China. Perhaps he feels that for India to jump into northern Korea with U.N. would in the long run prejudice India's relations with China and relations with China are vital for they are about the only working relations China has with any country outside the Soviet bloc.

Nehru feels India can be the mediator between China and the democratic world. It can explain each side to each and it can try to put a restraining hand upon the Chinese Communist movement.

China—the very way Nehru says the word reveals his concern with China. It is a large part of the world, he says quietly.

INCREDIBLE

For the rest of the world to pretend it isn't there, is to him incredible. Not only incredible but foolhardy for at this time when nationalism is rampant in the East no Chinese is going to be impressed with an argument which says: "We will recognize you if you will throw out the Communists." In the first place they can't throw out the Communists. In the second they don't want to now at any rate for the Communist regime has given good government. In the third they are in no mood to accept outside dictation as to what kind of government they must have.

As Nehru talked thus globally, if I may put it that way, I recalled the words he gave us at Lucknow: "I can view this problem of Asia in some historical perspective and in the sense of masses in movement. Unless you do it also in that way you will not understand it or grasp it."

NEHRU POLICY

This article is an attempt to explain the foreign policy of the great man in this great India. It is so much more sense in his mouth than from the excitable and irritable Indians you will talk to in meetings and elsewhere. But it may be their very ardency and their very dislike of the West and suspicion of capitalism is a great force in making Nehru himself adopt their attitude of restraint towards U.N. and Russia. His people are not anti anything much. They are for peace and the threat to their peace has got to be very real and very aggressive before they will abandon their peace to fight for peace.

I must say that after spending some weeks on this continent and seeing their poverty and their snake-ridden villages and their cities not immune from wolves and hyenas it is not hard to imagine that they hesitate to rush to war because the papers say Korea or Iraq or Yugoslavia or some place is being threatened or even attacked by Communists.

Remember Troy?

ATHENS—Abandoned silver mines that helped finance the Trojan wars of ancient Greece may play an important part in solving the difficulties of modern Greece. With Marshall Plan aid, the old Laurium mines are being reopened. From them the ancient Greeks got the silver that paid for building the thousand ships that Helen's beauty launched. But the ancient Greeks could work only the shallow deposits, and did not exhaust the veins of ore. Mediterranean Mining Co., Ltd., a Canadian-American company, has been given a contract to start working the deeper deposits with modern machinery.

NOW EUROPE WORRIES

GENEVA—Fred Bates, American banker, department store owner and newspaper publisher in this old League of Nations capital, says it isn't just American foreign policy that Europeans worry about, but American domestic policies. U.S. decision to fight in Korea gave Europe a big lift. But uncontrolled increase in prices of U.S. cotton, wheat, meat, other foodstuffs, metals and raw materials which Europe imports has European businessmen genuinely alarmed.

Europe still has an inflationary hang-over from the war, with terribly depreciated currencies everywhere except in Switzerland. Prices in Switzerland are now back up to 1948 peaks, after a 10 per cent drop in 1949. More inflation in U.S. would only make the European price situation worse. While U.S. fears western Europe may go Communist, European bankers and businessmen fear U.S. may be going socialist. Latter prospect seems to frighten them more than the former.

THE HOME GARDEN

Art In Preparing Fruit Tree Holes

By JACK G. BEASTALL

Today . . . Fence posts and fruit trees. You question the connection? After all, both are part of the home garden, and both are set in holes, so why not discuss them together?

Fence posts, to serve their purpose adequately, must be set deep and firm in order that the fence will withstand child and gale. The secret of firm setting is to make the hole just large enough to receive the post, and the less soil which is loosened, the more rigid the post will be. These narrow, deep holes are known as post-holes.

The type of hole used for a fruit tree is diametrically opposed to that used for a post. A fruit tree hole is large with plenty of loose soil beyond and below. A hole 16 inches deep and two feet in diameter is a fair average size, and the top soil should be well spaded for another two feet beyond.

Never—take particular note of that word—never place manure of any kind below the roots, nor mix it with the filling-in soil. Loosen the subsoil, place some sods upside down in the bottom of the hole, chop them with the spade and cover with six inches of your best top soil. Some roots will have been cut or damaged when the young tree was dug at the nursery. To promote quick healing of the wounds, and prevent conditions favorable to disease, the jagged ends are trimmed smooth with a sharp knife or good secateurs. Should there be a knob or crook on the main stem about six inches above the roots, it indicates that the tree was budded to the rootstock, and this point should be kept a few inches above the finished soil level. Set the roots firmly on the

SAY CITY HAS LOST ENGLISH ATMOSPHERE

Victoria is fast becoming "just another Canadian city." No, that is not a disgruntled tourist speaking but Ald. William Pinfold. He was merely commenting on letters read at City Council meeting Tuesday from tourists complaining of the loss of English atmosphere.

Ald. Pinfold was not unduly worried about the loss, but felt that unless the city was of a mind to have architects plan an overall building style, to conform with 17th and 18th century British buildings, it was useless to waste time in discussion. The letters were quietly received and filed.

UNITED DISTILLERS OF CANADA LIMITED

Notice of Annual General Meeting

TAKE NOTICE that the Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Company will be held at the head office of the Company at 8900 Shaughnessy Street, in the City of Vancouver, in the Province of British Columbia, on Friday the 24th day of November, A.D. 1950, at the hour of 11:30 o'clock in the forenoon to receive and consider the report of the Directors of the Company, the Balance Sheet, Statement of Income and Expenditure, and the Auditors' Report for the year ending December 31st, 1949, and to confirm all actions of the Directors and Officers of the Company during such year, to elect Directors for the ensuing year, to appoint Auditors and to transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting. DATED at Vancouver, B.C., this 6th day of November, A.D. 1950. BY ORDER OF THE BOARD, N. H. PETERS, Secretary.

Under an agreement announced simultaneously today in Ottawa and Washington, the United States agrees to include Canadian defence producers in its compulsory priorities structure.

Canada, in its turn, agrees to include United States defence producers in its voluntary system, directed by strategic industries in consultation with the trade department.

Though there has been no great difficulty in United States industries obtaining Canadian raw materials, Canada has seen her much-needed supplies of American steel cut by about 20 per cent, from a normal annual supply of about 1,000,000 tons to less than 800,000.

By becoming incorporated into the U.S. priorities system, Canadian defence manufacturers will have the same chance of getting U.S. steel as would any American defence producer.

A forward step in development of the Oct. 26 joint industrial mobilization pact, the new agreement will not mean that Canada will change her present voluntary priority system to a more formal one.

In the United States, Canada's defence orders will have the benefit of the formal U.S. system on priority ratings extended by the national production authority.

BIRTH TOTAL SHOWS DECLINE; DEATHS MOUNT

OTTAWA (CP)—Births in Canada declined while deaths went up in August and the first eight months of this year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday. Marriages were higher in the month, but lower in the eight-month period.

Births in August numbered 30,065, compared with 33,370 a year ago, bringing the cumulative total for the eight months to 234,469 against 235,880. Increases in the month were recorded only in Manitoba and British Columbia and for the eight months in Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

Deaths in August totaled 9,582, compared with 9,128 in August, 1949, raising the eight-month total to 81,459 from 80,026.

Lose Free Spot As City Replaces Missing Meter

By JIM McKEACHIE
Every now and then the City of Victoria loses some revenue. It isn't often that something the city fathers have earmarked for the municipal coffers slips through their fingers, mind you—but it does happen.

Such was the case of the Missing Parking Meter.

That title is applicable to similar situations which have arisen from time to time, but in this instance it refers specifically to Broad Street between Fort and Broughton.

Somewhat or other the incumbent meter was put out of commission—by a truck backing up, some say—and had to be removed.

There followed a tense week when hawk-eyed drivers circled the block waiting for the newly-created free spot to become vacant.

Then some of the eagerness fell off—a businessman knew he could stay there all day, since there was no parking meter, and none of those signs on power poles limiting parking. He would park there all day.

But the early bird adage did him out of his prized position. Another motorist who started work at 8 found himself home-free every morning, and took over the spot.

His thriftiness was overcome by his self-satisfaction, however, and he boasted of the Missing Parking Meter to fellow-workers.

Soon his colleagues were in the race for the gratis parking spot.

Tuesday, the whole deal blew up. City workmen arrived on the scene and installed a new meter.

City Will Keep Sign-Permit Fees

Fees charged for sign permits will remain as detailed in the building by-law, the City Council ruled Tuesday.

Ald. Waldo Skillings suggested a rider to the effect that the by-law be enforced.

"We would create a precedent to bring in an addition that it be enforced," said Mayor Percy George. "All our by-laws are to be enforced."

Council agreed penalization was the only way to prevent skirting of the regulations. The by-law is regulatory in character. Permits must be obtained before erection of any signs.

F. Hunter Named Election Officer

M. Frank Hunter, city clerk, was named returning officer for the city of Victoria for the forthcoming civic elections Dec. 14, at City Council meeting Tuesday.

Aldermen approved a recommendation of the special City Hall committee that the second floor of the hall be altered at a cost of $2,200. Minor alterations will also be undertaken in the purchasing agent's department.

City Manager To Do Bargaining

Takes Over Duty Of Directing Labor Relations; New Personnel Branch

The city got itself a new bargaining agent and personnel department at one fell swoop at Tuesday's council meeting.

STEADY WORK FOR AIRLIFT

TOKYO (CP)—Canadian pilots on the Korean airlift see their job continuing indefinitely.

Some say that even if the Korean war ends soon, the United States will continue to use the air freight train service to help stockpile arms in the Far East. One such stockpiling point is believed to be in the Philippines.

A lift to Manila would eliminate the present weather-hazardous route through Alaska and the Aleutians to Tokyo.

Council's O.K. Contrary To Town Planners

Proposals for a dairy and a drive-in coffee shop on Quadra Street were approved by City Council Tuesday, despite recommendations to the contrary from the Town Planning Commission.

An application had been made for a change of zone to permit erection of a dairy building on two lots at the northwest corner of Kings Road and Quadra Street.

The T.P.C. opposed in view of what they considered the intensity of traffic and noise from a bottling works.

The second application was for a zone change from commercial to garage to allow a drive-in curb service coffee bar and booths on two lots on the west side of Quadra between Kings Road and Hillside Avenue.

The T.P.C. referred to the "busy highway" and did not consider the proposed development would be beneficial to a growing area.

Council held the view that the entire district up to and including the Quadra Hillside corner was a growing business area and they did not feel they should try to stunt "free enterprise."

Car Kills Woman

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Mrs. J. Fred Ritchie, a Prince Rupert pioneer was killed Tuesday when struck by a car in the downtown section.

Civic service committee, under chairmanship of Ald. Hilda Saxter, turned over the reins of civic staff labor relations to Cecil C. Wyatt, city manager.

In addition a personnel department will be established with the city manager instructed to bring in a report on the matter.

The move was a logical outcome to the appointment of the city manager, in that the Municipal Manager Act gives the latter the power to act as a bargaining agent. The civic service committee possesses the same power, but deferred it in favor of the manager.

The committee felt it expedient that there "should be no conflict between the powers of the manager and committee in respect of collective bargaining."

The Labor Relations Board will be notified of the change. The committee acted on behalf of the city in last year's bumper crop of employees' wage negotiations.

Council approved the 1950 working agreement between the city and its outside staff, members of the Civic Employees' Protective Association No. 50.

Seven-Year Penalty For Theft Series

VANCOUVER (CP)—John N. Bennett, 35, was sentenced Tuesday to seven years in penitentiary when convicted of a series of house robberies here.

He was released from Prince Albert, Sask., penitentiary only eight weeks ago. He had served a five-year term there for forgery and theft.

In a three-day robbery spurge here he broke into four homes and stole jewelry and clothing valued at $3,000. He pleaded guilty.

He is wearing a dark jacket with a name tag that reads "HARRIS" and several medals or ribbons on his left chest. The background is dark and textured.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By RED SMITH

BALTIMORE, Md.—One Hitter, a plucky little member of the deserving rich, picked up $15,000, plus a gold cup, plus a silver picture frame, plus enough champagne to brighten life considerably for the hands around Greentree stable last week by winning the 14th running of the Pimlico Special, Maryland's celebrated winner-take-all horse race.

The little fellow beat a small field well, furnishing lively entertainment for Pimlico's 11,000 guests, and $6 cash for each of them who had the foresight to bet a deuce on him. This is an invitation race and because some of the most celebrated critters invited this year weren't able to come—Middleground's racing is done, for example, and Hill Prince is in California—it was not a remarkable field. But it was a good contest and a victory calculated to expand One Hitter's reputation.

Twice this fall, One Hitter hooked up with big, rugged Noor, the horse that got famous beating Citation in world-record time in California. The first time they met, One Hitter slipped through on the rail and won but that feat was widely discounted because Noor was giving away a lot of weight. They tried it again, with One Hitter still getting weight, and the Greentree colt outlasted Noor in a walloping contest in the stretch.

A Stimulant Detected

Still he hadn't won a stake without getting a weight advantage until this lovely afternoon. Then he carried 126 pounds, same as Royal Governor, Chicle 2nd and Abstract. He took the track at the start, and in the mile and three-sixteenths everything in the field had a shot at him.

He whipped 'em all, like the good, game competitor he is. Although the field for the Special was small, the literary tone of the occasion was lofty—the only four-eyed animal to receive this courtesy up to now—reported early in the paddock, full of confidence and other items. He was subject to a saliva test and was ruled off when Dr. L. J. Volenick detected traces of martini, a stimulant.

This would have been a blow to the literary set except that Pimlico made up for everything by taking cognizance of Grantland Rice's birthday. Celebration of this happy occasion, a movable feast, began last Wednesday when Mr. Rice turned 70 and races named in his honor were run at Jamaica and Churchill Downs. Today Pimlico named the daily double for him, calling the first race the Granny and the second the Rice.

The Double-Granny To Rice

This was a singularly appropriate tribute, for Mr. Rice is deeply, devoutly, devoted to the daily double as a measure for improving the breed of newspapers. He is the world's most distinguished horse-lover. "My interest in the thoroughbred," he has said with sincere emotion, "is four inches of nose on the wire"—and when he visits a track he has daily double tickets the way children have measles.

Frank Graham, one of Mr. Rice's 163,743,622 friends, once confessed to a desire to be buried in the Saratoga infield, not immediately but when such treatment should become advisable.

"Why do you want to be planted there?" Mr. Rice inquired.

"Well," Mr. Graham said, "it's a beautiful place, restful and lovely. I could lie there and listen to the morning works. And maybe if I played cards right with the management I'd be allowed to stick my head up about post time for the first race and see what's going on."

"Post time for the first race!" Mr. Rice said aghast. "You'd miss the daily double!"

He Salvaged The Champagne

In the considered opinion of Mr. Rice, no thoroughbred can lay claim to beauty at less than 10 to 1 and consequently he was a mite disenchanted when a gelding named Lanast, which was favored at only slightly better than even money, won the Granny.

As his custom, however, he broke out all over with double tickets, including one that coupled Lanast with Milk War, which then won the Rice. Standing waist-deep in discarded tickets, he watched while a double price of $29.20 was posted. This represented salvage, not profit.

The Pimlico management, which always sends a case of champagne to the barn of the special winner, grows in grace with every passing year. This time champagne was also provided for Mr. Rice's birthday. It was served, suitably, in a bushel basket full of used daily double tickets, on losers.

Max Bentley Credits Success To Line-Mates

As a hockey player, Max Bentley has a reputation for being at his best when he feels off color.

Toronto's dippy-doodle centre from Delisle, Sask., must indeed be feeling poorly this season, for he's at the top of the heap in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

The perch isn't new to the 30-year-old Maple Leaf star—he led the league race in 1946-47. But in recent years he hasn't been up as high among the scorers as he used to be a few seasons back. He wasn't in the top 10 last season.

Shipley, Lott Top Kickers

A new feature of the Victoria Rugby League this year is the kicking competition with the Brock Whitney Trophy the booty for the winner.

For each conversion kick scored and each penalty kick booted, players are awarded two points. Currently heading the parade are John Shipley of the league-leading Victoria College thirteen, and Norman School's Reg Lott. Shipley has booted three conversions and one penalty kick, while Lott has the opposite record for eight points apiece.

Top 10 kickers follow:

	C	P	Pts
John Shipley (College)	3	1	8
Reg Lott (Norman)	3	1	8
Yelo Fowler (Scottish)	1	1	4
Kay Ramsay (Scottish)	1	1	4
Bashat Basi (College)	2	0	4
Jan Turner (S.S.A.A.)	2	0	4
Albie Williams (O.R.A.A.)	1	0	2
Art Hicke (Scottish)	0	1	2
Art Bridge (College)	0	1	2
Sam Kinghorn (S.S.A.A.)	1	0	2

Max credits his line mates—plus a potent Leafs' power play—with improving his scoring status this year. He says that Joe Klukay of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Danny Lewicki, from the Lakehead, form the second best line he's ever played with.

BEST LINE

Still tops in Max's book over a period of 11 years in the N.H.L. is the line he centred with Chicago Black Hawks before he was traded to Toronto in the 1947-48 season.

His wings there were his brother Doug and Bill Mosenko. The league-leading Leafs reach new hostilities tonight with the hard-playing New York Rangers in New York, while the second-place Detroit Red Wings invade Boston for a tussle with the luckless Bruins.

Thursday night's lone scheduled game will find the third-place Montreal Canadiens in Chicago for a joust with the Black Hawks, who hold down fourth place.

Ever-Improving Cougars Give Canucks' Defence Busy Time

Most of the action in last night's Coast Hockey League game at the Memorial Arena, was centred around the cage of goalie Jim Strachan of the Vancouver Canucks. In the first period, Reg Abbott, centre of the Cougars' "kid line," shows some of the flight exhibited by the trio when he attempts to get at the bouncing puck in an orthodox manner with his stick between the legs of Willie Schmidt, Vancouver defenceman. Strachan has turned to face the play, while the Canucks bearing in from the other side of the goal are Vic Lofvendahl and Church Russell. (Right) Late in the third period Canuck defenceman Larry Reardon fell heavily into the boards when attempting to check Victoria's Joe Evans near the Vancouver goal. Grouped around Reardon after his accident are members of both teams, trainer George Wilkinson and a St. John's Ambulance first aid man. Reardon was helped from the ice but was not believed to be seriously injured. Victoria won, 4 to 1, to move into undisputed possession of fourth place.

Cotnoir To Cougars As Canucks Routed

Tars Out To Upset Classy Vics Tonight

Tonight's sport focus is on the Vancouver Island Junior Hockey League game between the Vics and Navy at the Memorial Arena commencing at 8.

The Royal Canadian Navy puckchasers will be out for their first victory over the Vics, who have won both their league contests to date.

The Tars will mainly be out for revenge, as they absorbed a 6 to 1 drubbing at the hands of the Vics in the opening game of the season two weeks ago.

Not satisfied with humbling the bluejackets, the Vics opened their siege guns again last week, humiliating Nanaimo, 6 to 0.

Last night, the Navy scored its first win to move to within two points of the Vics. The Tars downed Nanaimo, 6 to 3, at the up-island city.

Stan Daoust and Ken Sheedy led the attack for the sailors with a brace of counters each.

Two preliminary games are on top for hockey enthusiasts. Royals and Capitals, juvenile entries, will raise the curtain at 7, and an hour later, Bruins will meet Maroons in a second juvenile fixture.

On Thursday morning at 6.30, Royals will meet Maroons in a city junior loop tilt.

Still Vitally Interested In Group's Many Projects

Twenty past presidents of the Victoria Gyro Club who are still active in the service club, met Monday night in the Pacific Club with the 1950 board of directors to map a program of activities for this community-minded group.

George F. Gregory, who was recently installed as president for 1950-51, presided. Mr. Gregory said it was remarkable that a club should have so many of its former presidents still intensely interested in its welfare. There had been 29 presidents since the club was formed in 1921. Three past presidents, H. Cuthbert Holmes, Dr. Jack Mercer and Angus W. McIntyre are still members of the club but were unable to attend the meeting. Two past presidents, Everett W. Taylor and William C. Bond, have passed away.

The past presidents recalled hectic days in the early life of the club, told of projects carried out and most of them deplored the advancing years which they admitted were slowing them down. But all were vitally in-

Family Operates Span Many Years

CANTIC, Que. (CP)—When it comes to holding the bridge, old Horatius should take a back seat to the McGee family in this village 45 miles south of Montreal.

As operators of the swing equipment, the McGees hold the Canadian National Railway's swing bridge across the Richelieu here. Even the railway officials call it "McGee's Bridge," though officially it's the Richelieu Bridge.

Jim McGee, now 94, took over the span in 1898. He was succeeded by his son, D'Arcy, recently retired at 65. Brother Charles followed but when Charles retired in 13 years there will be no new McGee to take over the job. Old Jim's other two sons deserted the bridge job, one for the United States and the other for a position as foreman of the C.N.R.'s Turcot yards.

South Ontario Towns Seek Deepsea Port

PORT BURWELL, Ont. (RUP)—Several southern Ontario communities have joined forces to work for the establishment of a deep-sea port here.

Businessmen said it sounds like wishful thinking now, but they believed that adequate preliminary work may put Port Burwell on the map in years to come as a world trading centre. The plans are being laid on a long-term basis by members of the Chambers of Commerce of Ingersoll, Woodstock, Simcoe, Tillsonburg, Delhi, Norwich, Aylmer and Port Burwell. They started their survey this month with a short cruise around the harbor. A 40-foot slice of the west bank is being removed to widen the entrance and to allow easier navigation.

At present, Port Burwell is used by coal boats and fishing tugs. The port authorities look forward to a busy flow of it.

Burgess Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
Choose your friends with utmost care.
Of too much friendship beware.
—Honker the Goose.

It isn't nice to be suspicious. Certainly not. But it is better to be suspicious than to be too trusting. Long ago Honker the Goose found this out. Never had he forgotten it. This is one reason he has lived to be the trusted leader of many flocks of his own kind on the long, long journeys to and fro between nesting grounds in the Far North and to the Sunny South, where they spent each winter.

Over and over he had warned his children to be polite to strangers but not trusting, especially if they were extra friendly on short acquaintance. "A lost feather is lost forever," he would say, and the young Geese would nod their heads gravely and wonder what he was talking about feathers for.

Each day they flew and flew and flew. Each night they rested on some lonely pond or small lake. It was on the shore of one of these that they saw the friendly one. When they first saw him he was at the very edge of the water. He had his head up and was watching them, but all the time he had his hands in the water and he seemed to be doing something with them. He was, He was feeling about in the soft mud under the water. Never had the young Geese seen anyone at all like him. He wore black rings on his thick furry tail, and he wore a black mask across his face. They never had seen anyone with a ringed tail, and they never had even heard of anyone wearing a black mask, or a mask of any kind. So they stared and stared in the most impolite manner. As they stared they drifted nearer and nearer without meaning to.

"I guess you never have seen anyone like me before," said the masked one pleasantly.

The young Geese shook their heads. "No, we never have," said one. "Do you mind telling us who you are?"

"Not at all," replied the other and grinned pleasantly. Anyway he meant it to be a pleasant grin. But somehow the black mask made it seem not so pleasant as he meant it to be. "I'm Bobby Coon."

"Oh," said one of the young Geese. "We've never heard of you before."

"My full name is Racoon, but most folks call me Bobby Coon. I'm a little cousin of Buster Bear, if you know who he is," said the other.

"We've seen a Bear. He tried to catch one of us," said another young Goose.

"How dreadful!" exclaimed Bobby Coon, pretending to be shocked. "He must have given you a great fright."

"He did, but no Bear will ever give us another such scare. We know Bears now and we'll always watch out for them. I wouldn't trust a Bear as far as I could see one," declared a young Goose.

"I don't blame you. I don't

"I guess you have never seen anyone like me before," said the masked one pleasantly.

blame you at all. I wouldn't if I were in your place," replied the masked one. All the time he was feeling about in the mud.

"What are you doing that for?" asked a young Goose.

"I thought there might be a Frog down in the mud there, but I guess there isn't," explained Bobby Coon, taking his hand from the water and sitting up. He was really old friends. You must be his children and I surely am glad to see you. You must have been flying all day and be tired. Why not come ashore for a change? It really is very nice here. Of course, you have nothing to fear from an old friend of your father like me." He did his best to grin in a friendly manner.

GEESSE NOD

The young Geese nodded. They had drifted in a little nearer. "Have you known him long?" asked one.

"He stops here every year," replied Bobby Coon. "So you see we are really old friends. You must be his children and I surely am glad to see you. You must have been flying all day and be tired. Why not come ashore for a change? It really is very nice here. Of course, you have nothing to fear from an old friend of your father like me." He did his best to grin in a friendly manner.

Report Asked On Glass Imports

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott has instructed the Tariff Board to inquire into duties which Canada imposes on imports of certain types of glass, including window glass.

The object will be to determine whether the present duties offer sufficient competitive protection for the Canadian glass manufacturing industry.

Most Canadian glass at present is manufactured at a big plant north of Montreal which was recently reported to have been purchased by a United States concern.

Just look at the value you get in SAFEWAY STEAKS

Steak value should be measured two ways: First, by quality of the meat; second, by the proportion of good eating meat on the cut. On both counts you'll find Safeway steaks unsurpassed. Our steaks are cut from top grades of beef only—meat which is sure to cook up tender and juicy. Then we trim away parts that don't rightly belong on a good steak—excess bone and fat, sections of tough meat. (See diagram at right.) The result is a steak which offers a maximum of good eating for your money. We guarantee it.

By ART STOTT

People who commute from Langford sing the praises of a bus driver who figures that handling the bus is just a small part of his job. He may not be his brother's keeper, but he keeps a lot of youngsters and oldsters out of trouble.

On the morning run into town he picks up boys and girls at different stops and carries them to school. Like others, Langford youngsters aren't all in a hurry to get to class. The driver pulls up beside a gate and honks his horn. If that doesn't bring a kid struggling into his coat and flying down the path with books in one arm and lunch in another, the busman sends one of his juvenile passengers to see what's causing the delay. As far as the driver's concerned, the kids must get to school, and he's going to see they do unless there is a good excuse.

THEY TELL ME he knows the older folk so well that he just automatically stops at their homes when he's bringing them back from town. If the passenger happens to be engrossed in conversation with another, he asks if they want to get out or have a longer ride. Visiting nights, he calls to pick them up at their places and lets them off at their friends', sometimes without even asking. And on the odd occasion, when the subdued lights of a warm lounge downtown have been a bit too much for a Saturday night, he'll help the old codger to alight, face him toward the front door and give an almost imperceptible shove.

Out Langford way a bus driver has to be a bit of a guardian angel, too.

THE LAST PERSON I met who had fallen under the persuasive oratory of a pitchman selling Indian Snake Oil was a boy about 14 who bought two bottles. He did that for economy. The man at the fair, after explaining how many uses a bottle of Snake Oil could be put to—and according to his story, it would cure almost anything—explained to the boy that one small medicine bottle sold for 38 cents, but that he could have two for $1.25. The kid knew a bargain when he saw it.

It was an expensive way to buy turpentine, but as far as the youngster was concerned, it was worth every cent. That Snake Oil used to come out every time he had a bruise. When his throat was sore, he rubbed it externally with Snake Oil. For headache, he'd drip a couple of drops at the base of his neck. The healing qualities were miraculous, until you realize how big a part faith can play in cures.

QUACK DOCTORS in England, they say, achieved some phenomenal results with highly colored soap pills in days gone by. The ingredients were simple. The triumph of mind over matter was a little more complex.

Some of the old family remedies, though, still seem to have merit in themselves, not just in their psychological effect. An old recipe for a healing plaster is still popular in many households. Its tallow and balsam base does a job on anything from infected cuts to boils.

It's interesting to come across samples of some of the old pharmacists' tools used to prepare such concoctions. In the near future the Department of Pharmacy at U.B.C. will receive from a Victorian a set of plaster irons with other instruments for its library and museum. The irons are oblong slabs of metal, about two inches long, an inch wide and half an inch thick, with long handles. They could be thrust in an open fire and heated before the ironing part was pushed into the plaster mixture and then ironed over muslin or cotton.

WITH THEM WILL go a neat little contraption used for blood-letting when that was a reputable practice. Techniques are different these days. Now if you have too much in your veins, you take it to the Red Cross and they relieve the pressure.

You can make what you want of the old-fashioned medicine and medical practices, but those who handle the modern prescriptions and follow up-to-date methods point out that people live longer than they did when they depended solely on more primitive remedies.

It's a bit startling, just the same, to walk into a modern chromium plated pharmacy these days and see a dark jar of black-strap molasses for sale on the counter. Most of us have almost forgotten that distant spring-time protest: "But Ma, I don't like sulphur and molasses."

Smoky Oil Fire On Waterfront

Oily smoke poured from hold of freighter Southolm at Capital City Iron Works wharf today after burner's torch ignited oil in bilge of ship now being dismantled.

Damage was negligible. City firemen crawled down ladder into smoke-filled hold and extinguished blaze with water fog.

IN COURT

VICTORIA

Trial of John H. Pollard, 3135 Blackwood, on a charge of dangerous driving, was set for Nov. 16. Counsel James J. Proudfoot had complained to the court about the delays in starting the trial. Constable Norman Galbraith was censured by the court for not consulting his superiors in matters related to the case.

Paced at 55 miles an hour along Pandora Avenue, Donald Irvin McClain, was fined $40 on a charge of dangerous driving. He pleaded guilty. His car was paced by Sgt. Walter Andrews and Constable James Baxter. One-month license suspension accompanied the fine.

Ronald R. Robinson, 19, of Victoria, is to be screened at Oakalla as to qualification to enter Borstal School. He earlier pleaded guilty to stealing three watches. E. E. Pearman, acting for the Children's Aid Society, made a plea for a suspended sentence to give Robinson a chance to lead a good life. Verdict of the screening will be given Nov. 23.

NEW NURSING COURSE

Operating Technique Marks Jubilee Plan

A four-month post-graduate course in operating technique and administration will be started in February at Royal Jubilee Hospital, according to announcement made today by Miss Janie E. Jamieson, R.N., newly-appointed surgical supervisor at the hospital.

Miss Jamieson who has supervised operating rooms in a number of hospitals began the post-graduate surgery course at Vancouver General Hospital about eight years ago.

"The course will be a certified one and we hope to start with a class of about four graduate nurses in February," she said. "We will continue throughout the year."

There are not many true post-graduate courses in Canada, according to Miss Jamieson who comes to Jubilee after 13 years at Vancouver General. "My work is the same wherever I go, and I am keenly interested in any organization and development of departments as well as teaching," she said.

A graduate of Montreal General Hospital, she served as assistant supervisor of operating rooms at the hospital. She was supervisor of operating rooms at St. Luke's Hospital in Spokane and also at Royal Columbian in New Westminster before her appointment at Vancouver General. Miss Margaret J. Coult, R.N., former surgical supervisor at Royal Jubilee, has been appointed clinical instructor in surgery to improve the training program in

Wurtele, Carey Again Esquimalt Candidates

Two of three Esquimalt councillors whose terms of office expire next month will seek reelection. The other will likely drop from the municipal scene. Sure starters in the annual race for council posts are Councillor Alfred C. Wurtele and John E. Carey. They announced today their intentions to seek office again.

Councillor James A. Ellis, however, will not likely seek reelection. A council member for eight years, he has been in ill-health for a considerable time during the term of office now drawing to a close. He said earlier in the year he did not expect to be a candidate this December.

Councillor Wurtele became Esquimalt municipal representative when he led the polls in 1946. He was re-elected in 1948. Councillor Carey is completing first term of office, having been first elected in the 1948 contest. Other candidates will be coming forward later in the month. Last year there was great interest in the Esquimalt election with no less than nine candidates bidding for council positions.

There will be no reeveship contest this year, Reeve A. I. Thomas having been put in office by acclamation in 1949 for a two-year term.

Other B.C. winner is Jack V. Long, Vancouver freelancer, who also wins $25.

Mr. Forrest is a Victoria Camera Club salon director and former vice-president.

Ask Chairman Be Appointed Labor Board

Early appointment of a chairman for the B.C. Labor Relations Board was urged by a mainland delegation appearing today before Labor Minister Cates.

The delegation consisted of Ald. R. K. Gervin, Vancouver, chairman of the provincial executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and Jack Stevenson, president of the Vancouver-New Westminster District Trades and Labor Council.

Mr. Cates was unable to say when a successor to the late J. Pitcairn Hogg will be named.

Many Countries Contribute To Local Grocery Counters

By PENNY SAVER

Fruits and vegetables from the West Indies, Florida, California, Oregon, as far south as Mexico, and as close to home as Denman Island, opposite Courtney, find their way to the city to make for happy eating hours.

According to wholesale row, there'll be a shipment of oranges . . . sweet and juicy as you like them . . . in your favorite grocery shop within a few days. Likewise, the first lot of chestnuts from Oregon . . . who said Christmas isn't just around the corner?

You can buy your "lovely bunch of coconuts" now, "cause they're available at 25 cents each . . . they're the visitors from the West Indies.

Like the last rose of summer, cantaloupes are a sittin' on the counters, a la Cheshire cat smile on the face, selling anywhere from 20 cents to 25 cents each.

Persimmons packed bag and baggage and came all the way up here from California to take a look at the great wide north. The fruit, which resembles an orange, yet is as smooth skinned as an apple, is selling at 2 for 27 pounds for 38 cents. In plastic bags too, are yams, 38 cents for a 3-pound bag and onions, 3 pounds for 20 cents. Curly-leaved kale is debuting at 6 pennies a pound; Swiss chard, down three pennies, the same price; corn, bless their huskies, 13 cents the pound; green beans, 20 cents a pound and sweet spuds, a pound for 14 pennies.

For the jelly pot, there are quince selling at a pound for 7 cents . . . healthy heads of lettuce, 9 pennies each . . . parsnips, big bruisers they are too, 10 cents for a bunch of three . . . but the bunch too, are leeks, at the same price.

Not pitted, but tasting like so much candy, are the dehydrated dates available in pound packages at 25 cents . . . those little mouth-waterers, the Macintosh Red apples, no less, by the 40-pound box, $2.69, or 2 pounds for 15 cents.

Then serve plain or with cream, or slice and serve in fruit salad with dressing. Persimmons are particularly delicious in ice cream or less . . . caution, kids, don't serve the fruit until entirely soft as it is very astringent when hard.

Turnips from Denman Island, it is told, are the best on the market just now . . . pomegranates are being wrapped up at 10 pennies each . . . artichokes have joined the ranks of the vegetable family at 20 cents each. MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Upbraided As Busybody, Woman New In Neighborhood Asks How To Meet Situation

Dear Mary Haworth: Five years ago my husband and I moved into an old rundown house in a nicer neighborhood than we'd lived in before. Doing the work ourselves, we've greatly improved the looks of the place and we take pride in being here.

Mary Haworth

The neighbors all seemed nice friendly people, but we soon learned, that sharp gossip abounds, and that hardly any two families were friends of any other two. So we didn't mix too closely with anyone, and until now we were one of three friendly families that spoke to everyone in our block. But today I was assailed by Mrs. X, a quite elderly widow, who accused me of "minding her business," and talking about her to a near neighbor of hers, to whom I've hardly said more than "Hello, nice day."

Mrs. X has one of the largest, best kept homes here. She lived alone with her dog; and I a newcomer, would stop to praise her flowers as she was working in the yard. Her husband died many years ago and I understand she had a daughter who died quite young. I soon learned that Mrs. X made life miserable for neighbors with children; so much so that one family moved away, and another would like to.

I knew she took undue interest in others' affairs, but I attributed this to lack of close ties, not to malice.

As to why she specially upbraids you, your letter (here condensed) mentions "trivial words and actions" distorted by her, which may seem that you've remarked, perhaps sympathetically, on her changed appearance or behavior since the dog's death, and the same version of your comments got back to her. Inasmuch as disturbed neurotics characteristically lash out at persons they know best, this would be enough to bring her charging down your neck. Yet even if she heard no "gossip" imputed to you, it is axiomatic that any degree of intimacy with neurotics always incurs proportionate friction—unless one is maturely expert in handling them. Thus you unwittingly bade for trouble, sooner or later, when you offered friendship over the fence, praising her flowers.

For advice: Instead of taking offence at Mrs. X's explosive distress that she can't define, why not react with Christian charity, since she is a familiar figure and essentially harmless? If she comes to the door to berate, invite her in to sit and rest and explain herself; and offer her a spot of wine, or coffee and cake, or tea and sandwiches. If she telephones to lecture, voice your sincere regret for the "misunderstanding" that disturbs. And as a good neighbor, you might confidentially notify the Family Service Society (in your city) of her distraught isolated plight. If she has no relatives to befriend her.

RECLUSE BROODS SINCE DOG DIED

Her dog was killed not long ago, and since then she's become slovenly in her dress, and now she thinks any two neighbors talking together are gossiping about her. In this mood she upbraided me, and she has been actively tale-bearing and mischief making towards others too. She has made things unpleasant for three other families by her fancied wrongs in recent weeks; and her oddities seem to be getting worse. Can anything be done for her?

NEUROTIC METHOD OF HANDLING GRIEF

Dear C. E.: It appears that you have been doing enough reading along psychological lines to get the significance of Mrs. X's behavior. The loss of a household pet by cruel ac-

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The word patience crops up over and over in parental education literature. Patience is one of the parents prime virtues. The big catch is that it isn't always just patience at the moment but patience for the long pull that is so valuable.

Sally is a runaway child. She is just 18 months old and five minutes after she is let outdoors, she is out of sight. Her mother tries to be patient but her fright gets the better of her. Suppose she should get run-over? So she runs after Sally and belabors her painfully in order to impress her with the advisability of staying at home.

She would get as far if each time Sally left the yard she followed her up immediately and brought her in the house. "Remember," she should say, "you can't play outdoors unless you stay in the yard. You can play right where Mother can see you and take care of you. But if you leave, I'll come, just as I am doing now and bring you in."

That takes patience and time. But it works.

Unselfishness is a slow growth. Children tend to be selfish. There are so few things that belong to them and which parents are willing to let them handle, that they hang onto those grimly. No one is going to take away their dummies or their dollies and no one had better try.

Other children come and contest their rights to their toys. They may want the companionship of the children and so will give their toys up in favor of their larger social interests. But, quite often, even this does not inspire them to be unselfish. They want everything they can play with themselves and everything the other child would like to have. So they stand like mastiffs, guarding a bone, unable to play for fear that when a toy is dropped the other child will pick it up.

Be patient. Eventually the child will discover that he can't play, no one else can play with him and no one is going to take his toys permanently. Then he will release them and show symptoms of unselfishness. It's not a trait that springs full-grown.

Our leaflet No. 69, "Selfishness and Jealousy," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Getting Lost In Strange City Lucky Break For Young Czechoslovakians

Many people would consider themselves extremely unfortunate if they were lost on a dark night in a unfamiliar city far from their homeland.

But Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Leibl think themselves very lucky. For they were rescued from just such a plight by Hon. R. W. Mayhew and Mrs. Mayhew, and continuing their good fortune, are now in the employ of the Minister of Fisheries and his wife at their Beach Drive home.

The attractive young Czechoslovakian couple have been in Canada two weeks.

They arrived from Germany, where they spent the past year in a displaced persons camp, aboard an American steamer with 1,200 others seeking new homes in Canada and United States.

Upon docking in Halifax Mr. and Mrs. Leibl immediately set out for this coast.

"We wanted to come to British Columbia because we have friends here," both stated simultaneously with wide smiles, their soft voices pleasantly slurred with accents of their home country.

New Canadians, Lee and Rudolph Leibl, are pictured at the Beach Drive home of Hon. and Mrs. R. W. Mayhew.

Mr. and Mrs. Leibl described their friends as a young couple who came to Canada six months ago, and are now in Vancouver where they hold positions at a fraternity house, the wife as cook and her husband caretaker.

"That is how it started," laughed the dark-haired, blue-eyed couple, and Rudolph, explained with gestures, the trouble they had in trying to locate their friends and, finally, how they became lost.

They asked the first persons they met for directions, not knowing that they had chosen a governmental figure and his wife.

"They kindly gave us the assistance we needed, and then, after hearing our story, offered us employment with them," stated Rudolph.

"And so here we are," joined in his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Leibl will spend the next year in domestic positions.

Then they hope to return to their former occupations, Rudolph as a bookkeeper and his pretty wife, Lee, as a fashion illustrator.

Both are fond of music and are looking forward to the next concert of the Victoria Symphony.

Rudolph, violinist with the philharmonic orchestra in his former home, brought with him an instrument he purchased during his year in Germany.

"He has not had much time to practice, but now he will be able to continue with his music," stated Lee happily.

The young couple, married nine years, speak English well, and also are able to read and write the language.

That they are eager to learn and adopt the ways of their new home is easy to see, for at the conclusion of their interview, both gave a cheery "so long" to reporter and photographer.

Veterans' Hospital To Get New Bus, Auxiliary Teas Assist With Fund

It was reported at a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Veterans' Hospital, held last Monday, that the present recreational bus has been condemned. As the bus has become indispensable, in that many wheelchair patients who otherwise could not do so, may in this way leave the hospital for outings, the new bus is to be purchased immediately.

"Which makes it all the more important that we do not break the chain of our tapering tea," convener Mrs. W. G. Colquhoun said, "as the moneys from these teas goes into the bus sinking fund."

"In this way everyone who has attended the teas has a definite interest in the new bus."

Announcement was also made at the meeting that Miss Kathleen Agnew had donated $100 to be placed in the sinking fund.

Mrs. R. D. Harvey presided; Mrs. G. F. Homer announced a bank balance of $342.34, including a gift of $50 received from Ladies' Auxiliary, Canadian Legion No. 92 at Ganges.

Two hundred and eleven patients were visited during the month and given gifts of cigarettes, tobacco, chocolate bars and magazines, it was reported by Mrs. P. W. Richards, hospital visiting convener; Mrs. A. Ketchell stated $45 was realized from sale of dogwood pins.

Five new members, Mesdames F. J. Knight, C. C. Cook, R. Lloyd, W. L. B. Young and T. G. Vant were welcomed.

The auxiliary will place a wreath on the cenotaph on Armistice Day and will also supply one for the hospital church service.

Foretells Vancouver Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Thomas announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Ruth Kathleen, to Mr. John Arthur McLoughlin, eldest son of Mrs. H. L. Robinson, Vancouver, and Mr. J. H. McLoughlin, Cobham, Surrey, Eng. The wedding will take place quietly in Vancouver in the very near future.

Vegetables Cooked Around Meat, Shortens Kitchen Work

Next time there's a roast for Sunday dinner mother might try cooking the vegetables with the meat. Not only is this a tasty oven dish, it also a labor-saving device which permits the lady of the house to spend more time in the living-room with the family than at her usual Sunday post-the kitchen.

Sliced onion cooked with a roast of beef adds to the flavor of this popular food. Carrots and potatoes are the vegetables suggested for oven cooking with beef. They should be put in the same pan with the roast about an hour before dinner is due to be served.

Gingerbread and whipped cream might complete this "oven" meal.

Hot Water Gingerbread—Ingredients: 2½ cups flour, ½ cup sugar, 1½ teaspoons ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup molasses, 1 egg, 4 tablespoons softened fat, ½ cup boiling water, ½ cup seedless raisins (may be omitted).

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add raisins which have been washed and floured. Make a hole in the middle of mixture, pour in molasses, melted dripping, beaten egg and boiling water. Mix quickly. Pour into buttered pan and bake in a moderately low oven about 50 minutes.

If a baked pie crust is on hand, Sunday work could be cut down even more by whipping up a lemon chiffon pie.

Ingredients: ½ cup sugar, 3 egg yolks, 1 lemon (grated rind and juice), 4 tablespoons boiling water.

Sprinkle sugar over beaten yolks, and then beat all of the above ingredients together. Cook in double boiler until thick. Cool. Beat whites of three eggs, add ½ cup sugar and gently fold into the lemon custard mixture. Pour into baker crust and brown quickly in a hot oven.

Health experts regard cheese as a good source of calcium protein, vitamin A and riboflavin. It should be included in the diet at least three times a week by itself or in a combination with other foods.

Incidentally when planning the day's meals be sure to include foods from every group in Canada's food rules. These groups include milk, fruits, vegetables, cereals, bread and meat. A balanced diet which is necessary for good health requires some of each of these foods every day.

Model Hats 'Bootlegged' In Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — "Bootlegged" hats are a secret of Paris millinery circles. They're on sale only to those who know their way around the Paris fashion underworld.

The first step is to obtain the address of a good hat-bootlegger—a rare bird because she must have a quick eye, clever hands and many friends.

Then the inevitable climb up, flight after flight of stairs to the door which hides a woman's paradise. An eye appears at a peephole. Credentials are checked, more closely than if you were being admitted to the vaults at Fort Knox.

Once inside, it is a "prix unique" (one price) system—5,000 francs ($14) for any hat. But the choice includes all the latest models from the leading milliners. If you have your heart set on a little Dior or a wonderful Legroux number which has tempted you, there it is—for 5,000 francs instead of the 20,000 francs which caused you to quail at the thought of your husband's reception of the bill.

A careful explanation to Madame Bootlegger suffices. She knows every hat in town and is capable of copying it so exactly that even its creator would be mistaken.

Musical Couple Get Royal Approval

LONDON (CP)—Queen Mary has given encouragement to two music composers, Mr. and Mrs. William Webb of Fulham, Mr. Webb is a former Saskatoon, Sask., newspaper man.

They have received from Queen Mary's lady-in-waiting a letter saying that the Queen Mother was pleased to accept Mrs. Mary Webb's piano solo "Twilight Tapestry," which has been accepted by publishers and broadcast.

With Mr. Webb composing the lyrics and his wife writing the music, the couple has composed 20 pieces of music ranging from classical to novelty numbers.

An accomplished pianist, Mrs. Webb gave many concerts for charity during the war, but did not become a composer until her husband became ill two years ago. On his release from hospital he was told he would be unable to work, and it was then that he and his wife decided to try composing music.

Transcribed Sermon Wins Preacher Post
VANCOUVER (CP)—The rich voice of a young Scottish minister, transcribed in Scotland and heard by a church congregation in Vancouver, has won for Rev. W. M. Stevenson the pastorate of Ryerson United Church here. The 37-year-old minister, whose last parish was Dunoon, Scotland, first gained notice in Canada through an article he wrote in the United Church Observer.

When informed of an opening here, he hit upon a recording as the best means of selling himself to his prospective congregation. The 12-inch recording he made was a short sermon on prayer.

BAD PEDESTRIAN HABITS

Loitering And Jay Walking Add To City's Heavy Traffic Problems

By DAVE STOCK
Victoria motorists from time to time are collectively raked over the coals for their driving habits. More often than not, the criticism is justified.

Police accident files show that never a day goes by but some person supposedly "in control" of a car, does something stupid to cause either personal injury or property damage to another.

But what about pedestrians? Public attention was directed to them last week when City Prosecutor Claude Harrison spoke out against them in police court.

He ruefully observed pedestrians were using the city by-law giving them right-of-way at intersections as a means of creating major traffic jams.

TAKING ADVANTAGE

Mr. Harrison conceded the intention of the law was good because it provided pedestrians some measure of safety, but felt those concerned were going too far in putting it to use.

Readers can take Mr. Harrison's word for this. Subsequent investigation by the Times has revealed more serious pedestrian habits:

1. Despite laws and advice from safety councillors, Victoria pedestrians still jay-walk.
2. Victoria pedestrians don't give much thought to safety. They make no attempt to cross the street as quickly as possible when the way is open and neglect to take the simple precaution of looking about them for approach of danger.

In some cities signs are placed at busy intersections telling people to walk smartly and look both ways.

FOLLOW THE LEADER

3. Victoria pedestrians are responsible for the preservation of the childhood game "Follow the Leader."

The truth of this can be found at any crossing where traffic is regulated by a stop-and-go light.

Though the light be red, one leader can start all others moving across simply by stepping off the curb. Stepping off the curb before the proper time, incidentally, is a common habit.

4. Two out of five Victoria pedestrians seemingly are unable to distinguish amber from green. Amber lights are designed to provide ample time for pedestrians who start to cross a street just before the green flash ends to complete their crossing before traffic begins in the opposite direction.

Amber and green in this city seem to mean one thing: go.

OUTSIDE THE LANES

5. Victoria pedestrians don't stay within the painted pedestrian lanes. The lanes are plenty wide enough, but the practice is to walk outside. One reason for this is that the right-hand rule of the road is ignored, so that pedestrians are continually having to sidestep on another to avoid bumping.

6. One out of every 50 Victoria pedestrians is so preoccupied he completely forgets about traffic lights. Fifty-two per cent of these individuals "wake up" half way across; hesitate, then rush back to the point of origin. Forty-one per cent make the other side successfully without ever knowing they did wrong, while the remaining seven per cent never know what hit them or how in the world it could have happened.

IDEA FOR CALGARY

Wants Death Penalty For Teasing Animals

Magistrate H. C. Hall may rest easier for being lenient to "Mickey," the pet dog of Cecil C. Duke, 870 Brett Street, who got his master into court for biting a meterman.

In a letter addressed to the magistrate and received at the courthouse registry, O. I. Gilbert, who gave his address as 1503 15th Avenue W., Calgary, wished both the meterman and the magistrate the "most horrible death if Mickey were done away with or banished from his home."

The writer, apparently under the assumption that the magistrate had sentenced the dog to die or to banishment, decried the whole system of British justice for pets in British Columbia.

In his defence of the dog population, he even suggests that boys be put to death who tease animals.

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—We are selling quite worthwhile quantities of cheese to Canada and the United States," William Marshall, chairman of the New Zealand Dairy Products Marketing Commission, said today on his return from a visit to North America.

"Subject to things we cannot foresee such as political opposition we would expect to develop an outlet for reasonable though not necessarily large quantities (of cheese)," he said.

New Zealand, as a result of a price dispute with Britain, plans to divert larger quantities of butter and cheese to other markets in the coming year.

'Handful Of Anglo-Saxons' Made B.C. Part Of Canada

Credit was given to "a handful of Anglo-Saxons" for British Columbia being part of Canada and the Empire, instead of being a colony of some foreign power by Jack Melville of Vancouver, in an address to the Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

"We might have been Spanish, Russian, American, or French," said the former chairman of the B.C. Products Bureau. "All those countries tried to 'get into the act' on the Pacific Coast."

He pointed out that B.C. pioneers existed just a short time ago, and that their achievements are often overlooked.

"In 1850 there were only a few hundred white men in Oregon and what is now British Columbia," he said. "Now 1,200,000 persons earn their livelihood here. To accomplish this in such a short time was little short of a miracle, and is due to the achievements of a few."

In a short review of the history of the province, Mr. Melville paid tribute to the early factors of the Hudson's Bay Company, whose foresight put the company in the position to meet developments as they arose.

"With the finding of gold in the Fraser the fur trade was finished," he said. "But the company was ready with its farms, chief of which was at Fort Langley, and its importation of beef cattle to the Cariboo. The gold rush actually gave birth to our present basic industries."

The province is now in the fifth stage of its development, he said, with secondary industries manufacturing finished products from local raw materials. The balance between primary and secondary industries is favorable, he said.

2 New Courts For Tennis

Two public tennis courts to be constructed in the southwest corner of Oak Bay's Windsor Park will be ready for use by next spring.

Municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave said wire netting and metal uprights have been purchased, and a tennis net is already awaiting completion of the courts.

The engineer says it is hoped to have the surface prepared for the final asphalt cap by the end of the year.

At the other end of the park, the old loop which was the terminus of the Oak Bay streetcar has been cleaned up and beautified.

Also in Windsor Park, the rose garden has been maintained at a high standard and is drawing much favorable comment, the engineer said.

At Lafayette Park, near the foot of Monterey Avenue, a cypress hedge has been planted on the side bordering that street, and the Hampshire Road side has been cleaned up recently.

J. W. ALLAN, Municipal Clerk.

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Edith Flood, the former Miss Frey, has inherited 51 per cent of the stock of Frey & Company, an advertising agency, along with her two brothers, Jeff and Myron, and young sister Jean. Two accounts are shaky. One, Morn-Glo soap, has been placed temporarily by presenting Lewis Northcott, its advertising manager, with a new campaign. Meanwhile, Edie receives word that her husband Peter is in Reno getting a divorce. Dan Reagan, Edie's executive at the office, reveals he is in love with Edie, but Edie does not give him her answer. Next the other "shaky" account, Lyons Bread, kicks up a fuss and threatens to take dire steps. Dan has prepared two campaigns to present to Mr. Lyons.

CHAPTER XXVI

On Friday when Reagan, Stoneham and Vernon were about to leave for the interview, Edie joined them. Reagan looked at her inquiringly and she inclined her head.

"Don't let it disturb you," she said, "but I'm going along. To see for myself."

She did see. As Reagan presented the campaign she sat unobtrusively in a corner of Mr. Lyons' office and watched that prissy little egotist methodically kill the ads over which Stoneham and Vernon had slaved. His objections seemed to her fuzzy, not clearly defined, childish and trivial. There was nothing that could not have been remedied with a few strokes of the pen. Yet Mr. Lyons turned the entire campaign down.

Doggishly, Reagan trotted out the spare. It met the same fate. Mr. Lyons pooh-hoed it from the start.

"I don't know what's come over your agency," he said at last, glaring at them fustily.

VISIBLE EFFORT Reagan was close to the breaking point. He controlled himself with visible effort.

"Mr. Lyons," he said, "we've brought you at least three sure-fire campaigns in the last week. We thought they were good. Perfect. But let's grant that they were only 90 per cent. With a little fixing . . ."

Lyons interrupted, seizing upon the word "fixing." He waved his hand irritably. "Fixing. You can't fix a thing that's basically wrong. Can't be done." Suddenly his eye fell on Edie sitting, almost forgotten, in her corner. "I'm very glad you came today, Miss Frey, because I understand that you've been in charge of the agency since—er—since your father passed away. Now you must see this situation can't go on. What, Miss Frey, are you going to do about it?"

It was the moment Edie had been waiting for. Very deliberately she lighted a cigarette, although she knew Mr. Lyons objected to tobacco. For a moment she looked at him, her green eyes narrowed.

"I'm going," she said succinctly, "to spend $30,000."

She heard Dan Reagan's involuntary gasp. She was aware of an apprehensive look flashing to Chuck Stoneham's face; of Mr. Lyons' complete mystification.

"I don't understand you," Lyons said, mouth pursed.

"You will in just a second," Edie's voice was very calm.

"Ninety thousand is approximately the commission we make on your appropriation. Mr. Lyons, well, Frey & Company is going to sacrifice it."

"Come, come," he said, "I don't know what you mean."

"I thought," said Edie, "that I was being very clear. I'm asking you, Mr. Lyons, to take your account to some other agency."

At that point a data book which rested on Reagan's knees fell to the floor, noisily, violently. Edie kept her eyes straight ahead. But out of the corner of one of them she caught a glimpse of Pat Vernon. He wore a grin a foot long.

Mr. Lyons was staring at her, utterly baffled.

"Wh-what?" he said.

"It's very simple," Edie said. "I'm declining, under the present conditions, to do any more advertising for Lyons Bread."

"But this—but this . . . why, it's outrageous. I never heard of such a thing."

"I quite agree with you, Mr. Lyons. It is outrageous to have everything we do thrown out for no good reason."

Lyons looked a little like a cornered mouse. He sought refuge in paternalism.

"Young lady," he said, "you don't know what you're doing. You don't understand business. If your father were alive . . ."

"He'd have never stood for being bullied," Edie interrupted.

Mr. Lyons, I refuse to have our people driven and hounded this way. Commission or no commission."

Her eyes burned into his. And it was Lyons' who looked away first.

"Now, now," he said, fuming a little, "we don't have to have a scene about it. I admit I've been driving you people lately. But I wanted the—the best advertising I could get," he finished lamely.

"We've given you the best we had to offer," Edie kept her voice hard. "But, apparently, it isn't good enough. That's why I suggest you make a change."

"Miss Frey," paternalism failing, Mr. Lyons tried reproach. "I did business with your father for over 20 years. Our relations were always—well, usually—satisfactory. And now you want—he shook his head—"to sever this relationship."

"I don't want to sever it at all," Edie said. "I'm being forced to. You say that I don't understand business, Mr. Lyons. Well, maybe I don't. But I do understand people, to some extent. I know that the way we've had to work on your account lately hasn't done our creative people any good. There's a thing called morale, you know, and rather than lose it at the agency, I'd sacrifice your account."

Herring Catch Best For Years

British Columbia fishermen have a winter bonanza—a record herring catch.

It is the best in years and catches have been so heavy that one company has called in its fleet to let shore plants catch up.

There won't be any record so far as the number of tons caught—only in the length of time it takes to catch the silvery fish, since the various areas can be fished only until a government-set quota is reached.

Most of the herring fleet are fishing off lower east coast of Vancouver Island where the quota is 40,000 tons.

In six days 16,000 tons were landed, which means the quota of 40,000 tons should be reached before the middle of the month.

Most boats are from Vancouver, but about half a dozen packers from Victoria are in the area.

Price is $7.40 a ton—the same as last year—plus a company contribution of 10 cents a ton to the fishermen's welfare fund.
